Where They Make Tires.
Never so Cheap, so Good.
A Giant of the Air.
Two Days to Europe.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

AKRON, O., Oct. 22.

IN THIS city they make the tires on which Americans ride around, in the far north end of Alaska, the farthest-south road in Florida, down where Texas runs out into the Gulf and all the territory between. Mr. Firestone gave a luncheon at his house yesterday and invited the heads of two of his big competitors, Goodyear and Goodrich tires.

There appears to be perfect harmony in the automobile industry, at luncheon if not everywhere.

FEW REALIZE how big an industry it is that supplies rubber wheels to thirty millions of American automobiles, or to what marvelous perfection the machinery and art of tire-making have been brought.

THE FACTORIES, Goodrich, Goodyear and Firestone, visited under Mr. Firestone's guidance, are each a gigantic city in itself.

At one end of buildings that stretch for miles, is unloaded the crude rubber that comes in crinkly mats from tropical forests across the ocean.

Machines directed by skillful men and women handle the rubber to which is applied heat, expansion, cold water, soapstone, other treatments innumerable.

Thousands of miles of cord fabric using the best grades of cotton are added to the rubber.

ONE LONG line of machines and workers turns out the tubes, another produces the tires. The great majority of tires are made to carry the millions of light cars that cover every road in this country. Others, thick, wide and heavy, are strong enough for a truckload of 50,000 pounds, at high speed.

Automobile tires were never as cheap as they are now, never as good. The tire that was proud to run 4,000 miles, only a little while ago, now runs 15,000 and 20,000 miles before its life ends.

Rubber that cost a dollar a pound and more while the British were skillfully manipulating their monopoly, now sells for three and one-half cents a pound.

HARVEY FIRESTONE, who is young and looks ahead, does not intend to let the dollar-a-pound monopoly come back, as far as he is concerned.

He has bought tens of thousands of acres in Liberia, where rubber, which we do not grow in this country, can be produced for three cents a pound, and there in Africa no Asiatic war could disturb production.

NEXT CAME a visit to the hangar in which Mr. P. W. Litchfield, of the Goodyear Company, is building a giant airship for the United States Navy.

That sister ship of the Akron is now in the skeleton stage, with round ribs and a backbone of glistening white duralumin, 700 feet long, more than 300 feet wide; eight engines of 4,400 horsepower will drive it eighty miles an hour.

A man standing beneath that ship's skeleton looks like an ant gazing at an elephant. It is actually something that must be seen. Words cannot possibly describe it.

THE IMPORTANT fact for Americans is, first, that such a ship, sustained by five million cubic yards of helium, able to stay in the air a week or more with its engines stopped, could carry passengers and mail across the Atlantic Ocean and back, making the round trip in four days.

The second important fact is that private enterprise, asking no financial help from our harassed government, will build such a ship for mail and passengers, bigger even than the Akron, if the government, treating that airship like any water surface ship, will give it the mail-carrying privileges.

IT IS inconceivable that this should be refused. The possibility of sending salesmen, samples and mail of all kinds across the ocean, in two days, would have a value incalculable.

This particular airship, which will be ready for work within a year, will be sent to the Pacific Coast probably, and there will represent the United States Navy well.

You see in the skeleton framework the apparatus to which swift heavier-than-air pursuit planes will be attached, to be launched in time of need. They will bring back news of the enemy to the mother ship and perhaps drop a small consignment of high explosives or destructive gas to clear decks and wipe out gunners of enemy floating ships.

THIS CITY, great in industry, for nearly a century past, is greater than ever today and admirable in civic energy.

Its airport, one of the finest in the United States, sets a good example to the other countries.

Its streets are wide. Its citizenship, that has excelled in industry and perfected production machinery for so long, has surpassed itself in the development of the rubber industry which is its latest achievement.

All the tire factories in all the world, outside of Akron, could not possibly produce one-half the number of tires that can be made here.

WHOEVER SEES the high state of perfection to which the production of life's necessities has been brought, here and in Detroit, and in Cleveland next door, cannot doubt the ultimate limitless prosperity of this country, despite occasional setbacks caused by the stupidity of international war and of individual selfishness.

ELEANOR HOLM

Miss Holm, the beauty who gave up the Follies to become the Olympic swimming champion, today with Actor Antonio Moreno sued for $15,000 in Los Angeles by Nursemaid Olive Worum and her 6-year-old charge for injuries they charge were suffered when Mr. Moreno's car, driven by Miss Holm, struck them.

300 HUNTERS ESCAPE SNOW

SHERIDAN, Wyo., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Three Wyoming hunters were missing today in the Big Horn Mountains, from which 300 came out safely yesterday after snow plows had cleared huge drifts from the Sheridan-Lowell highway.

The missing hunters were Fred E. Demmel, 35; Dillon McKinnon, 17, and a man named Yoakum.

Caught by a snow storm Monday, the hunters either had continued their quests or taken refuge in a ranger station or in trappers' cabins. Most of them were experienced in early winter hazards in the mountains and reported no discomfort.

The highway was cleared yesterday and a stream of motorcars began winding down the mountainside.

Lily Damita Aboard As Plane Sets Record

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Col. Roscoe Turner, today had completed the first one-day flight of record between Mexico City and Los Angeles. His flying time was 11 hours 54 minutes.

With Joseph Schenck, film producer, and Lily Damita, screen actress, as passengers, Turner averaged 150 miles hourly on the 1,700-mile flight, making three refueling stops.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—One prisoner was stabbed to death today during rioting among city penitentiary inmates on Welfare Island in the East River. All available police in the city were rushed to the island to quell the riot.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Rioting broke out among city penitentiary prisoners on Welfare Island in the East River today and all available police were rushed to the scene from all over the city.

Armed with tear gas bombs, rifles and revolvers, more than 200 patrolmen and detectives sped to the island as police airplanes thundered overhead to spy out the condition of affairs and help in planning the campaign of attack.

After first reports of the riot had been received Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney and officials of the Department of Correction made repeated attempts to get in touch with the Penitentiary warden, but were unable to reach him.

Access to the island is gained either by ferry or by elevator from the center of the bridge. The island is surrounded by swirling currents coming out of Hell Gate, where the East River opens into Long Island Sound. Many times prisoners have sought to swim to liberty from the island, but few have succeeded because of the treacherous currents.

SURPRISE IRISH, HOPE OF TECH

By JESS CARVER
Staff Correspondent.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 22.—The varsity elevens of Carnegie Tech and Notre Dame prepared for their tenth meeting on the gridiron here today under the most ideal of weather conditions. The day dawned, as days will, bright and clear, with just a peppery hint of frost in the air.

The Tartan invasion of the city was complete as the Tech Kiltie band and a special trainload of Pittsburgh rooters rolled in at 7 o'clock over the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The Kilties marched to the Oliver Hotel, where Tech ticket headquarters were established. The Scots then prepared for their usual parade about town and the

MISS AINEY WINS DELAY IN QUIZ

Awaits Aid of Counsel Before Testifying in Utilities Inquiry

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Oct. 22.—Miss Kathleen Ainey, daughter of the late W. D. B. Ainey, former chairman of the Public Service Commission, appeared before the Senate utilities investigating committee today in answer to subpena, but asked permission to consult counsel before testifying about the financial affairs of her father.

Some of Ainey's bank records in a Harrisburg bank also were obtained by the committee, and others are to be procured from a bank in Montrose.

WILL MAKE STATEMENT

Miss Ainey said she wished to make a statement on behalf of her father and the State of Pennsylvania, but desired first to talk to John P. Connelly, Philadelphia lawyer, who had represented her father when he resigned from the Public Service Commission after charges by Gov. Pinchot that Ainey had received gratuities from utilities and their officers, including the late A. W. Thompson, former president of the Philadelphia Company, parent corporation of Pittsburgh utilities.

Miss Ainey is to be asked about her father's financial affairs, the Governor having charged that Ainey banked $185,000 in five years on a total salary of $50,000. Ainey in his will left $30,000.

With Miss Ainey temporarily excused, the committee proceeded with the questioning of C. S. Mitchell, vice president and con-

Pitt Favored To Defeat Ohio State

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

It's the Scarlet and Gray of Ohio State against the Blue and Gold of the University of Pittsburgh at the Stadium this afternoon.

It's Pitt the favorite, and Ohio State, captained by Lew Hinchman, son of Bill Hinchman, Pirate scout and former outfielder, the underdog.

It's one of the big games of the season here, the third meeting between two big universities of neighboring states. They first met at the Stadium three years ago, when Pitt won, 18-2, on a heavy field and under weeping skies—one of the most drab settings ever presented fo an important gridiron battle here. The next year, at Columbus, Ohio State turned the tables with a 16-7 victory.

PITT THE FAVORITE

Pitt enters the fray on the long end by virtue of an unbeaten season so far, with impressive triumphs over Ohio Northern, West Virginia and Duquesne, followed by that throbbing 18-13 victory over the Army at West Point last

NEWSIE GIVES HOME TO DOG

In the penetrating cold of today's dawn, a stray dog found a master, a meal and a warm bed in a packing box on Pittsburgh's busy corner at Fifth avenue and Grant street. And a Sun-Telegraph newsboy found a new pal, to whom he gladly gave his own warm coat.

Roger Painter, 12, 2637 Spring way, was at his corner before sunrise this morning. He found the dog shivering near his stand. They became friends, and Roger wrapped his heavy coat around the dog, bought him a hamburger and grinned while the little, nondescript black and white spotted animal slept through the rest of the morning.

Clapping his hands to keep warm without his coat, Roger told of his plans for Spot:

"I'm gonna teach him tricks and let him work with me every day when he gets strong. Already he can shake hands. But, boy, he sure can eat hamburgers.

Renne Registration Decision Appealed

John F. O'Neil, Democratic chairman of the Seventeenth Ward, today appealed from a ruling of the Registration Board which sustained the right of Dr. William A. Renne, Republican candidate for Legislature from the Sixth Legislative District, to claim his office in the Seventeenth Ward as his official residence. O'Neil contends Renne's residence should be that of his family in Carrick. The appeal will be heard, October 31.

RIO DE JANERIO Oct. 22—(AP.)—Will Rogers, the American humorist, arrived here by airplane today en route northward to the United States. The plane Rogers had taken from Buenos Aires left Santos, Brazil, last night, but was forced back on account of bad weather.

Kline 'Club' Aids G.O.P. Meeting

Mayor Charles H. Kline brandished the "big stick" today to compel attendance of the city payroll at the Republican rally in Syria Mosque tonight.

Orders went out quietly, but none the less earnestly, by telephone from the Mayor's office to the various municipal departments instructing the chiefs to spread word that everyone was expected to be present.

Recalling the Mayor's famous "bread and butter" speech of another campaign, the rank and file immediately took the hint that they would be in official disfavor if they failed to appear for a counting of noses at tonight's first big rally by Republicans in an attempt to prevent Roosevelt from carrying Pittsburgh and Allegheny County.

As the headliner tonight, Joseph L. Scott, of California, past supreme director, Knights of Columbus, who placed President Hoover's name in nomination at the Chicago convention, was listed to deliver the principal address.

Mayor Kline is to preside and is to deliver a speech urging support of the entire Republican ticket.

ROOSEVELT OPENS DIXIE CAMPAIGN

ABOARD ROOSEVELT SPECIAL, Oct. 22. — Confident that he has cleared the political atmosphere of "panic-creating tear gas" which he accused President Hoover and Calvin Coolidge with spreading in a desperate effort to "blind" the voters, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today was heading for Dixie through the border states of Kentucky and Tennessee.

The Democratic presidential nominee was scheduled to arrive before noon at Louisville, where his special will halt for two hours while he gives a message to the voters of the Blue Grass country. He will stop for 15 minutes at 9 o'clock tonight in Louisville, and then continue on to Atlanta, arriving there at 9:30 tomorrow morning.

JOHNSON OUT FOR ROOSEVELT

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Senator Hiram W. Johnson, of California, Republican independent, will speak in support of the candidacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt for president at a mass meeting here October 28, it was announced today by Maurice E. Harrison, chairman of the Democratic state central committee.

The announcement said the meeting will be held under the auspices of the Progressive Republican Roosevelt League of California.

Senator Johnson could not be reached for a statement and the announcement was the first indication he planned to actively indorse the Democratic presidential nominee.

Last week, in reply to a request from Southern California newspaper editors for him to issue a statement in support of Republican state and national tickets, he said:

"I cannot and will not support Mr. Hoover."

COMMODITY RATE BOOST HINTED

President Also Backs Coal Industry Aid In W. Va. Talk

ABOARD PRESIDENT'S SPECIAL EN ROUTE TO DETROIT, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Speaking from an improvised platform in Laidley Stadium at Charleston, W. Va., President Hoover announced today he had asked the tariff commission to investigate whole tariff schedules to determine whether many commodities were being given adequate protection "in the face of depreciated foreign currency."

The President left his special train bearing him to Detroit for a campaign speech tonight, in order to discuss the tariff and difficulties of the coal industry before a cheering audience of thousands in the West Virginia capital.

He advocated limited co-operation in marketing coal and other natural resources to safeguard them from destructive competition.

Mr. Hoover was the first President to visit this capital city during his term in office since Andrew Jackson in 1832.

SPEAKS ON TARIFF

Speaking on the tariff problem, President Hoover said:

"Due to depreciated currencies in foreign countries, the tariffs have been seriously impaired lately in a number of commodities. The depreciation in currency in foreign countries has in effect lowered wages and lowered standards of living in those countries.

"Four years ago I directed a survey to be made of the cost of living amongst workers in foreign countries, using as a common denominator the amount of bread and butter that could be purchased at retail with a workman's wages in each country.

"I found that in the highest wage countries they could purchase about one-half as much bread and butter with current wages as could be purchased by the workman in the United States in comparable jobs, and

Jail Held Up, Looted of Guns, Cash

CROOKSTON, Minn., Oct. 22, —(AP.)—In a raid on the Polk County Jail, four men held up the night and day jailers and a third man, taped their eyes and mouths and fled with $500, 20 slot machines, a machine gun, 500 rounds of ammunition, several rifles and pistols, and a small quantity of liquor early today.

Film Actor Freed In Girl's Stabbing

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Carl Mudge, 24, known on the screen as Charles Morton, was released from custody yesterday after detectives said they had been unable to discover facts indicating an abdominal wound suffered early Thursday by Dona Rose Wheelock, film extra worker, was not self-inflicted. She is expected to recover.

Mudge was taken into custody in her apartment. Detectives said the actress told them she wounded herself.

Identity of Drowned Man Being Sought

Morgue attaches today were endeavoring to identify the body of a man, aged about 65, found in the Ohio River near the foot of South Main street last night. The body was sighted by an occupant of a houseboat, who summoned police.

The throat and wrists of the victim were slashed. A Coroner's autopsy revealed drowning as the cause.

'Disciplined' Detective Captain Back on Duty

A "disciplined" captain of city detectives today was reinstated by Public Safety Director James M. Clark and Mayor Charles H. Kline as announcement was made of applications for retirement by two fire captains and seven patrolmen.

Capt. Howard (Doc) Forner, temporarily suspended by the Police Trial Board for permitting Pittsburgh Hymie Martin to smuggle papers to two prisoners in Central Police Station's cellroom, was ordered to return to duty tonight. Forner is a protege of Roy D. Schooley.

In restoring Forner to duty, Director Clark said:

"Fortunately, in reviewing the testimony, we find that there was no collusion between Capt. Forner and Martin, and had there been we would have dismissed Forner from the police service."

In announcing the retirement of the nine men, Director Clark said positions would be created for a number of young patrolmen with families, who have been getting only one day's work a week.

Those retiring are Fire Capts. Owen Haggerty, No. 33 Company, 27 years, and Charles Frank, No. 38 Company, 22 years, and Patrolmen John P. McConigal, 26 years; Logan S. Gallagher, 21 years; Peter A. McCormick, 29 years; William Huss, 21 years, and John McNamara, 31 years.

Hoover Makes Progress In West Virginia Poll

By COLE E. MORGAN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—(Universal.)—The strenuous fight the Republican campaign management has been waging this month to recover the southern border states showed some headway in new returns tabulated today in the nation-wide postcard presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

Most noticeable of the Republican improvement was in West Virginia, where President Hoover held Col. Roosevelt to a scant 78 [illegible] out of 708 [illegible] ballots, the state's vote divided 373 Roosevelt and 355 Hoover. Roosevelt, however, still has a majority of 1,955 out of 12,009 total West Virginia poll votes.

All other states in the South returned Roosevelt majorities for the week substantially larger than Hoover's vote.

From the foregoing it will be observed that it is only in West Virginia that any appreciable headway has been made by the Republicans in their fight to hold the states of the South which went Republican four years ago.

EX-KAISER'S BID FOR POWER PERILS SAFETY AT DOORN

HOLLAND OPENS PROBE OF HIS ACTIVITIES

Ex-Emperor's Desire To Resume Rule Brings Move

International News Service.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 22.—The possibility that formal steps may be taken to end former Kaiser Wilhelm's peaceful exile in Holland was raised here today when members of the Chamber of Deputies demanded to know whether he was engaging in German politics.

Several members of the Lower House called attention of the government to the agreement of 1918 whereby the ex-Kaiser was afforded haven in Holland on condition that he refrain from political interference.

POLITICAL RUMORS

In their petition, the deputies pointed out:

"There is a prevailing opinion abroad as well as in Holland that the former Kaiser is directly or indirectly supporting certain political parties in Germany.

"For this reason it is respectfully suggested that his observance of the 1918 understanding be examined."

The demand was believed based chiefly on the statement emanating recently from the ex-Kaiser's exile castle at Doorn to the effect he was ready to return to Germany whenever the German people called him.

In giving out the statement, the chief marshal of the ex-Kaiser's household declared that the former emperor considered the present government headed by Chancellor Franz von Papen to be truly representative of the German people and therefore if von Papen recalled him, he would return.

EX-KAISER SPEAKS

The former Kaiser has been more outspoken in his declarations of recent months than at any time since the German revolution sent him into exile. Only a few days ago he quoted a scriptural text in addressing a meeting of his Monarchist followers in an effort to show that Germany could not survive without him.

The ex-Kaiser's sons and grandsons, most of whom are active in German politics, are not bound by the non-political agreement which gave Wilhelm safe haven in the Netherlands.

THRIFT GARDEN OUTPUT TOLD

Products valued at $800,000 were produced by unemployed garden groups in the county last spring and summer, the thrift garden committee of the Allegheny County Emergency Association revealed at a meeting yesterday. About 22,000 persons planted gardens.

The original investment was $35,000, supplied by the association, land being donated by the owners.

Addressing the meeting, held in the Downtown Y. M. C. A., William P. Witherow, chairman of the Welfare Fund's campaign, said it was intended to raise $35,000 for similar use next spring.

Playwright's Wife Dies at Monte Carlo

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Word has been received here of the death at Monte Carlo of Mrs. Winchell Smith, wife of the playwright.

Cablegrams sent by Smith from Paris to friends said his wife died Thursday. Mrs. Smith was the former Grace Spencer of Troy, Pa.

Orangemen of 2 Districts to Rally

A mass meeting of Orangemen of Districts Nos. 6 and 12 will be held in Orange Hall tonight. William J. McAdams, of Philadelphia, and William McConaughie will speak. Arrangements are under the supervision of John A. R. Thompson, Alexander C. Moore, William Irvin, Joseph C. Henderson, Robert McCreery and John M. Huston.

Temporary Dry Injunction Granted

A temporary injunction was granted against a store at 2220 Tustin street and Frank Culupa, proprietor, in Federal Court, when prohibition authorities charged dry law violations on the premises. Final hearing will be held December 13.

Trying the Hidden Ball Trick -:- By QUIN HALL

troller of the Philadelphia Company.

In questioning yesterday Eaton developed that in 1927 the Duquesne Light Company, a subsidiary, wrote up its capital more than $14,000,000—establishing a value for rate-making purposes of $182,000,000.

DOUBLE VALUATION

In the same year it reported its value for purposes of taxation at only $112,000,000—a divergence of figures which was the basis of a protracted fencing between Eaton and the Philadelphia Company official. Eaton asked:

"Do you think that is fair practice to charge the larger sum when you are fixing a foundation on which to estimate rates and to lop off $40,000,000 when you are making a return for tax purposes?"

Mitchell evaded a direct answer, replying that circumstances might govern the situation which would make it all right.

Eaton drove for an answer, asserting the committee was trying to determine if the incident offered the opportunity for any remedial legislation, but was unable to pin Mitchell down to an opinion. Eaton told the witness:

"What you did was to fix a rate-making valuation which at the rate of 7 per cent profit allowed by the Public Service Commission meant an additional charge of $1,000,000 annually to the consumers of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County."

Mitchell finally admitted this was true.

MANAGEMENT COSTS

Management contracts of the Byllesby Engineering Company, the power behind the Philadelphia Company, were introduced. Engineering arrangements also were put in evidence. These showed that the Byllesby firm, on its engineering projects, charged 7½ per cent for service to its subsidiaries when it did all the work, and 2 per cent when the Philadelphia Company engineers superintended construction. Eaton was laying the foundation for a later conclusion that the engineering and management charges were onerous, and imposed a penalty on consumers, the sums coming out of the sum per cent the Philadelphia Company subsidiaries are permitted to earn under P. S. C. regulations.

A. W. Robertson, president of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, formerly president of the Philadelphia Company, is to be a witness at a later hearing of the committee. Robertson's name was interjected into the hearing yesterday when Mrs. Margaret M. Deasy, of Pittsburgh, former secretary to the late A. W. Thompson when he was head of the Philadelphia Company, testified that in 1922 she had arranged for a private luncheon in the William Penn Hotel at which Thompson, Robertson and Ainey were to be present.

'LARGE SUM OF MONEY'

Shortly after this luncheon, Mrs. Deasy testified, Thompson returned to his office and through her obtained a large sum of money. Ainey, the same afternoon, visited the Philadelphia Company offices, she said, and he and Thompson were closeted together for a few minutes. At the time the Equitable Gas Company, a Philadelphia Company subsidiary, had pending before the Public Service Commission an appeal for increased rates.

Mitchell and W. B. Carson, secretary of the Philadelphia Company, said they had never seen Ainey in the Philadelphia Company offices, and knew of no voucher for a large sum about the time Ainey and Thompson were supposed to have been together in the board room of the latter's private office.

MOTHER SAVES TWO IN FIRE

Mrs. Edith Porco led her two children to safety through smoke choked hallways early today when fire threatened their home at 1663 Chislett street.

The fire was discovered by the father, Daniel Porco. While he went to call firemen Mrs. Porco awakened their sons, Daniel, Jr., 9, and Frederick, 7, sleeping on the second floor, and led them to safety.

A pet rabbit of the Porco children was rescued while a pigeon was reported to have perished.

The blaze, started presumably by a defective flue, was confined between the walls of the building.

Damage was estimated at $200.

Firemen of Engine Company No. 36, at Stanton avenue and Chislett street, responded to the alarm.

Porco told police when he was awakened the house was filled with smoke.

NORRIS SCORES FORD PLEA

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Senator Norris, Republican, of Nebraska, in a campaign address last night criticised Henry Ford for his statement urging re-election of President Hoover. He recommended "some inflation" of the currency to aid agriculture. He added:

"Henry Ford said in effect he wanted Hoover to keep on the job until it was finished. Now, I don't know how Ford feels about it, but I believe the job is finished already. The farmer, the small business man, and nearly everyone else is about finished. It is time for a change."

ROOSEVELT ON JOURNEY TO DIXIE

Democrat Again Raps 'Fear' Propaganda Of Republicans

in St. Louis last night convinced Democratic leaders that he meant it.

He labeled the Republican leaders as the "new abostles of disaster," and he indicted the Hoover administration for the loss of millions of dollars in foreign bonds. Reiterating a charge which he made last August in Columbus, O., that the federal government had encouraged investment in foreign bonds, the Governor said:

"This is an unsavory chapter in American finance. My job will be to prevent a recurrence of this episode in our history and to prevent the hard earned dollars of American investors from being frittered away in foreign fields, encouraged by our own federal government, and with profit flowing only to certain international bankers whose greed is greater than their patriotism."

POINTS TO MAINE

Pointing to the Democratic sweep in Maine after "one of the administration whipcrackers started this campaign of fear," Roosevelt declared that the voters of the Pine Tree State had not been disturbed by these "false faces of disaster." He said:

"They saw that this horrible menace was only a painted mask. They realized that the artificially created eclipse of the sun was nothing but a low-lying smoke screen, so light as to be blown aside by the first breath of fresh air. They knew that the fire so artfully whipped into life was nothing but a campaign skyrocket."

Ripping into President Hoover and former President Coolidge, Roosevelt said a party "that sounds a note of alarm from high places is performing no decent service to the American nation."

He insisted the only appreciable improvement and confidence in the last three months has come as a result of the "new deal" which he has pledged the American people in the event of his election to the presidency and not as a result of the "insincere and indefinite" Republican platform.

Roosevelt struck at Henry Ford and other large employers who have advised the re-election of President Hoover. He said:

"The politician or employer who tries to deny you the right of a free and untrammelled choice on election day, and who uses a gospel of fear to blind you to the true facts presented in this campaign is an enemy not only of fairness and true sportsmanship in politics, but the very principles upon which this country has been established."

Tumulty Charges G. O. P. Spreads Fear

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Joseph P. Tumulty, former secretary to President Woodrow Wilson, at a Democratic rally last night charged President Hoover and other Republican leaders with "attempting to create a nation-wide hysteria of fear in order to be elected."

ELECT HOOVER, DAVIS URGES

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Oct. 22.—Pleading for the re-election of President Hoover, Senator James J. Davis, speaking at a Republican rally here last night, declared the competitive tariff policy proposed by Gov. Roosevelt would mean disaster to Pennsylvania steel and tinplate industry or slave wages to the workers.

He said that even now the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill was not high enough to keep out Belgian steel and Japanese tinplate, because of chea, wages in those countries.

Former Senator Myron Butler, of North Carolina, charged Gov. Roosevelt with misleading the people as to the causes of the depression and other issues.

The rally was preceded by an old-time automobile parade, five miles long, with red fire and fanfare.

TEST ON DEBTS PERILS HERRIOT

By GEORGE W. HINMAN, JR.
Universal Service.

PARIS, Oct. 22.—A political tempest of the first magnitude, threatening the future of the Herriot government, was forecast today as a result of the rising storm over France's obligations to the British exchequer and her war debts to the United States.

With Camille Aymard, publisher of La Liberte, firing defiant front page broadsides, champions of debt repudiation were actively marshaling forces so that when Parliament meets Tuesday, they may be able to demand that Premier Herriot declare whether, and how, his government intends to meet the payments due December 15.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Administration leaders were boiling mad today at Premier Herriot, of France.

It was all because Herriot was regarded as having tipped off the world to existence of the "secret understanding" between the United States and foreign debtors not to agitate the debts issue until after the presidential election November 8.

Mrs. Edison Talks On Air For Hoover

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, the widow of the inventor, made her first radio address last night, appealing for the re-election of President Hoover in a broadcast arranged by the Republican National Committee. She said:

"Our President is an engineer-politician. Engineers work through intricate networks most bewildering to the layman, but when all is finished wonders of the world are accomplished."

Reed to Speak Here At Hoover Meeting

Arrangements were being completed today by the Hoover-Curtis committee of the National Railway Supply Manufacturers for a meeting in the ballroom of the William Penn Hotel, next Friday, at which Senator David A. Reed is to be the principal speaker. Reed's address will be broadcast by Radio Station KDKA. Herbert A. May, assistant to the president of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, will preside.

HOOVER HINTS COMMODITY TARIFF RISE

President Also Backs Safeguards for Coal Industry

I found that in the countries of lowest wages they could purchase with their wages about one-third of the amount of bread and butter that could be purchsed by the American workman.

NEW SURVEY

"Recently I had this situation resurveyed in view of depreciated currencies. I found that in the highest paid countries, instead of being able to purchase one-half as much bread and butter as an American workman, they could only purchase one-third as much and in the countries of lowest standards of living, instead of purchasing one-third as much they could only purchase one-eighth as much.

"I call your attention to the fact that 93 per cent of the market for the American workman is within the borders of the United States and 7 per cent outside the borders. The Democrats propose to place our 93 per cent at the disposal of all countries in the world with the fantastic idea that the American farmer and worker can reduce his standard of living so as to increase his part of the 7 per cent, by reducing his standards to those of labor which can only but one-third as much bread and butter.

COAL PROBLEMS

"There is another question of vast interest to the people of West Virginia and one of ranking importance with your agricultural activities and second only to that of all states in the Union—that is your bituminous coal industry.

"The competition of oil, electricity, improved efficiency in use of coal—all tend to prevent the expansion of your industry, or even its maintenance on a fair level. These competitors have, in my view, about exhausted themselves, and the natural growth of the country will give to you a greater future, but in the meantime the industry has been reduced to a bitter, destructive competition, the main burden of which falls upon the backs of those who labor. I know the hardships that have been piled upon this industry, and the men engaged in it.

"A large part of my life was concerned with the mining industry. I have worked with a pick and shovel at the face; I have managed coal mines on a large scale.

"Some years ago, being impressed with the absolute destruction of our national resources and the impoverishment of labor through destructive competition in the coal industry, I suggested there should be some measure of co-operation in the marketing of coal. Ultimately leaders in the industry took the matter up and we have recently had a case before the courts as to whether limited co-operation of this character would be a violation of the anti-trust laws.

DECISION ADVERSE

"The first decision of the courts has been adverse to the industry, but in order that this matter might be placed on a sound and permanent basis, I recommended to the Congress two years ago that we should institute an inquiry as to the economic working of these laws as applied to the natural resource industries.

"I pointed out that destructive competition was creating wasteful and destructive use of the natural resources, impoverishing the operator and the worker. I pointed out the situation in the bituminous coal industry as an illustration.

"No action having been taken by Congress a year ago, I again returned to the subject and stated that it was necessary that some change should be made in the laws in this relation.

"I recommended that Congress give it immediate consideration. Neither you nor I wish to destroy the fundamental basis of competition in our country. But a limited co-operation to prevent this destructive action should be undertaken.

"We have already extended this privilege to your agriculture and labor.

"The coal industry could have such safeguards as would make it possible to pay a fair wage, earn a reasonable profit and save hundreds of communities from their steady degeneration and impoverishment."

Haul Boats Over Trails Seeking Lost Warden

SILVER BAY, N. Y., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Searchlights, dynamite and a fleet of small boats today were transported over a tortuous mountain trail to remote Jabes Pond, where the body of a young New York state game protector is sought.

Paul Du Cuennois, 26, disappeared Saturday when the sound of guns lured him into the mountains west of Lake George in search of unlicensed hunters. His canoe and hat were found floating on Jabes Pond Sunday.

The pond, 45 feet deep, was dragged without success. Believing that Du Cuennois fell overboard from his canoe, Chief Game Protector Morris W. Brackett, of Albany, went to the scene.

Yesterday 100 men laboriously began hauling nine rowboats, the searchlight equipment and heavy loads of dynamite over the two-mile trail.

When searchlight rays failed to aid the search 35 pounds of dynamite were exploded, but did not produce the body.

Diving machinery may be brought in over the trail.

Cox Denies He Sought To Run With Thomas

Father James R. Cox, who recently withdrew as the Jobless party presidential candidate to support Gov. Roosevelt, today denied statements attributed to Norman Thomas, Socialist presidential candidate, that Father Cox sought to make a deal with Thomas.

A dispatch from Washington, quoting a statement purporting to be from Thomas, said:

"After his convention in St. Louis, Father Cox sent me a telegram saying, 'You run for president and I will run for vice president,' or that he would run for president and I could run for vice president. He gave me my choice."

Father Cox said:

"When I announced my withdrawal, I received a telegram from Mr. Thomas suggesting that I support the Socialist party. That telegram is now in the possession of David Lawrence, Democratic county chairman. I did not answer it. I have received no other communication from Mr. Thomas nor have I communicated with him."

POLICE PRESS SEARCH FOR TWO POISON BANDIT SLAYERS

VICTIM LURED TO DEATH ON JOB PROMISE

Forced to Swallow Fatal Drink; $80 In Cash Taken

County detectives today were searching for two men who fatally poisoned Robert Miller, 54, a baker, of 806 Pine Hollow road, Stowe Township, robbed him of $80, and threw him from their automobile after luring him from his home on a promise of employment.

Mr. Miller

Miller, employed by the Hankey Baking Company, died late yesterday in Ohio Valley Hospital six hours after he had been found in a road in Imperial.

An autopsy performed by Dr. J. W. McMeans at the county morgue, disclosed that death was due to an unknown poison. Chemical analysis will be made to determine its nature.

Several hours before he died Miller, barely able to speak, regained consciousness and told John A. Bennett, Stowe Township health and ordinance officer, that he had been forced to drink the poison and robbed by two men, presumably the pair who promised him a spare-time paperhanging job.

BOY GIVES CLUE

Miller said he met the men in Woodward avenue, Stowe Township.

Lawrence Miller, 19, one of three children of the victim, said his father left home Thursday morning to meet two men who had asked him to help with some paperhanging. The boy said his father did not tell the family who the men were.

'CINDERELLA' POOR AGAIN

MARSHFIELD, Mass., Oct. 22.—(INS.)—Her large income reported dwindled to almost nothing, Miss Editha Scanlon Davis, "Cinderella girl," adopted daughter of the late Mrs. Adelaide Pierce Davis, of Lynnfield, today is a student in a secretarial school in Providence, R. I. Mrs. Davis was the wife of the late president of a Chicago radiator company.

Mrs. Mary Smith, who adopted the girl's brother, revealed the whereabouts of the "Cinderella girl," in denying reports that she had been living with her own father in a Marshfield camp with a weekly income of only $15 a week.

The girl was the center of a bitter court battle by relatives to break the will of Mrs. Davis, who had left her entire estate to her adopted daughter last spring. The "Cinderella girl" planned to enter a hospital to train for nursing, but later abandoned the plan.

Student Grid Fan Killed, Two Injured

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—A pre-football game reunion of three college students from Illinois ended last night with the death of one in a triple automobile crash.

Barclay Fleming, 21, of Williams College, son of a Lake Forest (Ill.) attorney, was killed. Sue Potter, 18, Wellesley College student, of Winnetka, Ill., and Hal Nixon, 21, a Dartmouth College student, of Riverside, Ill., were injured.

Insull Son Silent On Visit to London

LONDON, Oct. 22.—(INS.)—Strict secrecy was maintained by Samuel Insull, Jr., today regarding the purpose of his visit to London. He said:

"I can only say that I am making a short but indefinite stay here. I propose to return to the United States in November. My plans here are most vague."

Bursting Beer Too Much For the Law

MARTINS FERRY, O., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Alarmed by the bursting bottles of confiscated beer which, Justice of the Peace Harry Williams explained, were "blowing up too frequently for comfort," the officer has ordered the illicit liquid removed from his office.

The flying glass, he asserts, was a constant danger to himself, his staff and his visitors.

ALIBI CHECKED IN AX DEATHS

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 22.—The alibi of Clyde Harden, one of four material witnesses being held in connection with a triple ax murder committed here last week, was checked by Chief of Police John C. Wall yesterday when he made a trip to Cumberland, Md., where Harden said he was at the time he first learned of the tragedy.

The officer did not divulge what information he had obtained.

Harden's nephew, Billy Tressler, was the lone survivor of four persons attacked by the ax wielder. Billy's mother, Mrs. Nellie Tressler, his grandmother, Mrs. Amanda Harden, and sister, Sadie, were killed.

Ex-Soldier Held In Armory Theft

Albert Allison, 19, a former soldier in the United States Army, was arrested yesterday on a federal warrant charging him with stealing a suit, overcoat and shoes from the Edgewood Arsenal, Harford, Md. The complaint was filed by a special agent of the United States Bureau of Investigation. He will be arraigned before the United States commissioner.

Father, 19, Missing, Baby Daughter Dies

Members of the family of John C. Brown, 19, of McKinley avenue, Braddock Township, today asked the Sun-Telegraph to aid in locating him. His 5-month-old daughter died yesterday. He was last heard from two weeks ago when he wrote a letter from Kentucky.

'Phone Operator's Apartment Looted

A strong box containing jewelry and a revolver were stolen yesterday from the first-floor apartment of Margaretta E. Smith, 11 Federal street, a city telephone operator. Miss Smith found the apartment ransacked when she returned from work.

AUTOS SMASH INTO 2 STORES

Two automobiles collided at Oliver avenue and Wood street early today. One knocked down a light pole and crashed through an Oliver avenue window in the W. S. Brown store, at 523 Wood street.

The other smashed a Wood street window in the Brown store and one in that of the B. B. & B. Trunk Company, at 521 Wood street. Damage was estimated at $1,300.

The drivers, James McKiever, 22, of 175 Hallock street, and Joseph Du Guiorno, 26, of 1025 Vickeroy street, both of whom were arrested, estimated their damage at $300.

TOM MIX HURT AS FAST RIDE FELLS 'TONY'

Famed Rider Regains Consciousness After Stunt Injury

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 22.—Daredevil tactics of Tom Mix, and his famous horse, Tony, to satisfy the appetites for action of film fans, have brought serious injuries to the 52-year-old veteran motion picture cowboy for the third time in less than five years.

Attempting one of the spectacular stunts with which they have thrilled screen fans for a decade, Mix and Tony spilled yesterday in the mountains near Lone Pine, Cal.

Tony was unable to negotiate a 5-foot embankment down which Mix had ridden at breakneck speed. Mix, hurled over the horse's head, was buried under his mount. Unconscious and bleeding, Mix was taken to a nearby farmhouse for emergency treatment.

He was placed under observation for possible internal injuries after he had been removed to a hotel, where he regained consciousness several hours later. The horse escaped injury. Physicians said they believed Mix suffered a slight concussion of the brain and a wrenched right leg.

The spill occurred as Mix and Duke Lee, the villain of the film "Oh, Promise Me," engaged in a hand-to-hand combat as they sat in their saddles and thundered toward the embankment.

Fails to Remember How He Was Injured

Harry Bowers, 25, of 929 Beham street, North Side, still in a critical condition in the Suburban General Hospital, Bellevue, today told Emsworth police he did not remember how he had been injured.

Bowers, early yesterday morning, was found unconscious in the middle of the Dixmont road, badly injured about the head, back and legs. Police believe Bowers may have been beaten by thugs who then hurled him from an auto.

BEATEN WOMAN ACCUSES NIECE

BROOKLINE, Mass., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Miss Agnes Murray, of Burlington, Vt., was sought today for an attack on her 60-year-old aunt, Miss Margaret Stone.

Found on a lawn with her head battered, Miss Stone told police she had been attacked by her niece, wielding an automobile jack. Hospital physicians, after putting 30 stitches in the wounds, feared Miss Stone might lose her sight.

She told police her niece called upon her yesterday and while they were riding in Miss Murray's automobile, the younger woman stopped and suddenly placed a handkerchief, soaked in a supposed drug, over her aunt's face. She struggled and was struck with a heavy piece of iron, Miss Stone said.

She started to run across a lawn, Miss Stone related, and was struck several times. She fell, she said, and Miss Murray drove away.

STABBING STORY WINS DIVORCE

Raymond D. Shaw, 2307 Jenny Lind street, McKeesport, was helping his wife, Anna K. Shaw, to lay carpet November 1, 1930, when something went wrong and she stabbed him in the arm with scissors and hit him with a hammer, he testified in Common Pleas Court. She ordered him out and threw his overcoat after him, he said. Judge W. Heber Dithrich granted him a divorce.

A divorce was granted Robert G. Walker, musician, Hartwell street, Crafton, from Evelyn M. Walker, of Ashland, Ky. She walked out of their apartment in Huntington, W. Va., in October, 1926, when he objected to drunken parties, he testified.

Child Finds Mother Drowned in Bathtub

Mrs. Millicent Clark, 32, of 1500 Fallowfield avenue, Beechview, was found drowned in the bathtub in her home late yesterday, according to the Coroner's report. Mrs. Clark had been ill and evidently had suffered an attack while bathing. The body was discovered by a daughter.

Pedestrian Injured, Autoist Arrested

Joseph Lublin, 62, of 43 Ruthergien street, suffered a fractured skull today when he was struck by an automobile in front of 4908 Second avenue, police reported. He was taken to the Homestead Hospital. John Harmining, of 240 Renova street, driver of the car, was arrested.

Age Revealed By Eyes of Women

BOSTON, Oct. 22.—(INS.—The eyes of a woman reveal her age.

This fact was told today at the convention of the Massachusetts Society of Optometrists.

Experiments, conducted by Dr. Julius Neumueller, professor of physics and geometrical optics at Pennsylvania State College, and Dr. John E. Corbett, president of the Massachusetts Association, revealed many other things.

Blue-eyed people, according to Dr. Corbett, are frank and honest, and are more easily misled, while brown-eyed people are shrewd and can adopt a "poker face."

RICH BROTHERS FOUND SLAIN

CORNING, N. Y., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Two middle-aged brothers, Frank and William Van Cise, were found slain late yesterday at their lonely house in Beeman Hollow Woods.

A neighbor, Fred Green, wondering why he had seen neither of the brothers for several days, went to the house and stumbled across the body of William, lying in the yard, bullets through the heart and head.

Inside the house lay Frank's body. He had been shot in the back of the head. Both men had been dead about two days.

District Attorney George Pratt and Sheriff Stanley Hoagland, of Steuben County, were unable to suggest a reason for the killing.

Authorities found approximately $6,500 in currency in the pockets of the two men.

Chief Smith Heads International Body

Fire Chief Richard L. Smith, of Pittsburgh, today had been elected president of the International Association of Fire Chiefs at the organization's annual convention in San Diego, Cal. He succeeds D. W. Brosnan, of Albany, Ga.

The convention scored "the short-sighted policy of city officials in reducing fire fighting forces and curtailment of equipment to effect tax reductions."

Patman Predicts Bonus Within Year

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Congressman Wright Patman, of Texas, advocate of immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus, said in a speech here last night that "regardless of who is President, the bonus will be passed within a year. He spoke under auspices of Buddies' Chapter, Disabled American Veterans of the World War.

TORPEDOED SHIP SURVIVOR SUES

John Ira Leslie, of Summit Township, Somerset County, in a suit filed in Federal Court against the government, to recover on a war risk insurance policy, told of being homeward bound as a casualty on the United States hospital ship Mount Vernon when it was struck by a torpedo.

He said he was helpless in a steel and wood cast when removed to a lifeboat, where he was exposed to rain and cold for more than 10 hours, contracting bronchitis and pleurisy. He seeks to recover approximately $4,000.

John W. Kuntz, of Jeannette, filed suit to recover on a $10,000 war risk insurance policy. He said he was hurt in an airplane accident while serving at Park Field, Tenn., in October, 1918.

Accused in Attempt To Oust Dog's, Ashes

UHRICHSVILLE, O., Oct. 22.—Three Spanish War veterans, James Walker, James Bingham and Jack Jones, and Otis Ferrell, will be given hearings Friday by Mayor J. Wesley Lytle on charges of attempting to remove the concrete vase in which is kept the ashes of "Bing," dog mascot of Company D, 136th Machine Gun Battalion.

Presence of the urn in the Memorial Building has been protested by Spanish and Civil War veterans as disrespectful to the bronze tablets of the dead of those two wars.

Common-Law Wife's Will Claim Fought

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 22.—Whether a common-law wife has a right to share in distribution of a property under a will is to be ruled on by the State Supreme Court following the filing of an appeal by Helen M. Weaverling, of New Kensington, niece of the late William A. Goldman.

The appeal followed a court ruling here for Mary May Goldman, reputed wife of Goldman.

School Board Pares $11,350 From Budget

The Board of Public Education pared its budget $11,350 last night by the elimination of $3,000 for bond expenses, $4,500 through not filling a position formerly occupied by H. G. Masters, assistant chief, transferred to the department of primary education and $1,450 in clerk hire and supplies. The budget committee will resume its deliberations Monday night.

2 Bandits Get $50 In Grocery Holdup

Two bandits obtained $50 last night in a holdup of the grocery store of George Rooker, 601 Lincoln avenue. Rooker entered the store as the bandits were holding at bay his nephew, James Gillespie, 23, and rifling the cash register. He, too, threw up his hands.

HEIRESS SHUNS SOCIETY, WILL NURSE POOR

Wrigley Grandchild To Work Among Mountaineers

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—The glitter and gayety of social life have palled on the beautiful Betty Offield, granddaughter of the late William Wrigley, Jr., and so today this heiress of millions was preparing to say goodby to all that and seek a hardier life.

At the end of this month, it was learned, Miss Offield, the daughtre of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Offield, will desert the teas, theater parties and the drawing rooms of the "Gold Coast" to go to the rugged mountains of Kentucky. There, as a rank and file worker of the frontier nursing service, this daughter of luxury will devote herself to a career of hard work and usefulness.

Her friends have pleaded with her to abandon her stern ambition, have warned her against the discomforts and perils of mountain life with its primitive people, its uncouth manners and its feuds. But, to the counsels of the cautious, the idealistic heiress replies:

"I'll show them how much hard work and rough living I can stand."

Miss Offield is said to have inherited more than $4,000,000 from the estate of her late grandfather, the "chewing gum king."

ILLNESS DELAYS POISON TRIAL

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Progress of the Rev. S. Althea Berrie murder trial hinged today on the condition of an ailing juror.

Stricken with malaria, W. L. Puckett, a farmer, was unable to take his place in the jury box yesterday, and Judge W. J. Crump ordered a day's recess. The state seeks to convict the 52-year-old minister of poisoning his first wife two months before he eloped with Ida Bess Bright, 19-year-old Sunday school teacher.

Judge Crump said he would not declare a mistrial "at least until he's had Sunday to recover, that is, unless his condition is shown to be critical."

Hat Cleaner Burns South Side Woman

Mrs. Mary Kuchar, of 3222 Edwards alley, South Side, suffered minor burns and the Kuchar home was damaged by fire when a cleaning fluid ignited while Mrs. Kuchar was cleaning her husband's hat in her kitchen today. When her clothing caught fire Mrs. Kuchar ran to the bedroom of her son, Andrew, Jr. The flames spread to furnishings in the bedroom while he was extinguishing the woman's blazing clothes.

Firemen estimated the damage at $500. Mrs. Kuchar was treated at the South Side Hospital.

'Butting' Champion Held in Death Case

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—A Negro who butted skulls with another until one of them was killed, is held for grand jury action today despite the fact a coroner's jury decided death resulted from a "friendly game."

Donnie Nall, 29, was ordered held by Magistrate J. K. McLaughlin yesterday a few hours after the jury had exonerated him in connection with the death of Alex Chillis, 40, in a skull-butting contest Saturday at Elm Grove.

Welfare Fund Rally Set on South Side

Law Objects as Teeth Bridge Traffic Sea

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(Universal)—Clad in short trunks, brassiere and turban and hanging by her teeth from a wire 300 feet above the ground, Miss Tiny Kline showed gaping thousands in Times Square a new "safe" way to cross New York's most perilous traffic snarl.

But as an innovator, Miss Kline met severe disapproval. A policeman just missed her as she started her dizzy 50-mile-an-hour trip from a hotel roof on one side of the square, but she swept into another policeman's arms on the hotel roof opposite.

Endangering lives of pedestrians and blocking traffic for 10 minutes was the charge, which was dismissed after she told a magistrate:

"It is the safest way to cross Times Square. When you go up in a plane you take a chance. I'd rather trust my teeth than any motor."

Front of Home in U. S., Man 'Exiled' Over Line

FLYNN'S LINE, N. Y., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—The gathering winds of winter are whistling about a dreary, boarded-up house on the Canadian border, whose owner lives in the woodshed and is barred from entering his own house.

Arthur Plante, banned by the United States Immigration Service into his own back yard, is preparing to spend his fifth winter there. The woodshed leans against the back of the house, but is separated from it by the international boundary line.

But if Plante may not enter his house, neither can the immigration inspectors, for the only entrance now is through the woodshed itself, and that is in Canada.

Plante, a Frech-Canadian, immigrated to the United States and lived here 30 years. Then immigration agents were informed that Plante had made a visit to Canada, and forfeited his rights to dwell in this country. When he returned to his property immigration officers refused to let him across the line. Plante has lived in the shed ever since.

ROOSEVELT SWEEPS FAR WEST REGION IN WEEK'S POLL

11 STATES GIVE DEMOCRAT MAJORITY

By COLE E. MORGAN
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Gov. Roosevelt got all the breaks in the Far West this week in the nation-wide post-card presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

Every one of the 11 states of the Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast regions gave the Democratic candidate a majority of the state's poll ballots for the week.

California came through with a 345 Roosevelt majority out of 1,439 new ballots. Oregon gave Roosevelt 81 majority out of 843 ballots. Washington made the Roosevelt majority 78 out of 638.

Other Roosevelt majorities were 3 out of 29 in Arizona; 15 out of 69 in Idaho; 29 out of 201 in Montana; 19 out of 47 in Nevada; 27 out of 83 in New Mexico; 26 out of 142 in Utah; 4 out of 76 in Wyoming, and 6 out of 198 in Colorado.

As these states now stand, Roosevelt has 67 per cent of the Arizona poll vote; 64 per cent of that of California; 63 per cent of Washington's; 61 per cent of Utah's; 72 per cent of Nevada's; 57 per cent of Oregon's; 58 per cent of New Mexico's; 56 per cent of Idaho's; 53 per cent of the votes from Montana and Wyoming, respectively, and 49 per cent of Colorado's.

The first five may be definitely classed as Roosevelt states. The next three as reasonably safe for him, leaving only Montana, Wyoming and Colorado doubtful, with the advantage on his side in the first two and with his position improving in the last.

Presidential Trend By States

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—The tabulation that follows shows the total vote thus far recorded for President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States. It also shows the majority that each candidate has in each state in which he is leading. In addition it gives the gain of each candidate on the latest returns received from each state as compared with the last preceding report from the state. These state reports are usually a week apart. The final feature of this table shows the net gain of each candidate in each state where he has improved his position as compared with the preceding report from that state.

Besides her daughter she leaves a son, A. F. Hinger.

HOME BUSINESS DRIVE OPENS

Plans for a "buy Pittsburgh" campaign among Pittsburgh merchants were being shaped today, following a meeting of the Community Builders in the Fort Pitt Hotel, last night. The meeting agreed that merchants and manufacturers of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County should be invited to co-operate in a series of promotional efforts designed to spur employment and trade in the district.

Presiding at the meeting, attended by a group of retail merchants, was H. B. McNeal. W. H. Newmeyer, department store executive, promised support of the retail merchants. The Rev. Father James R. Cox, recent candidate of the Jobless Party for president, told the meeting:

"I believe that those holding the money of the United States are delaying the depression's end just to shake out some of the independents. The independents throughout the country must organize."

STOP BAD BREATH

Thousands of people afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

Olive Tablets brings no griping pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound; you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 15c, 30c, 60c.

THE DANGEROUS AGE

EVERY day the mail brings us a flood of letters . . . many from middle-aged women. They prove that Change of Life need not always be dreaded. They tell how the headaches, backaches, can be overcome or avoided.

Please read the end of a typical letter. It's from Mrs. MacCraig. "I took three bottles. It made me strong and healthy. I will always praise your medicine and tell other women about it."

Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Dept. L-10, Lynn, Mass., for a free trial bottle.

Listening In

Van Loon Makes Bow.
Al Smith Speeches.
Thurston for Radio.

Chalk up another "scoop" for that Home Circle program . . . Hendrik Willem van Loon the noted writer and journalist, made his bow as a regular Friday night speaker on the feature yesterday. The Circle heard each week day except Tuesday, at 6:45 p. m., now stars Albert Payson Terhune on Monday; Bruce Barton, Wednesday; John Erskine, Thursday; Van Loon, Friday and Emily Post, Saturday with Heywood Broun appearing as master of ceremonies and news commentator at each broadcast . . . If you've listened in vain for the program on WCAE this week, it's because NBC, last Monday gave it a later spot which conflicted with some of the station's previously arranged programs . . . It reappears on WCAE's schedule Monday night.

Mr. Van Loon

Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York, goes on the air over NBC and CBS nets three times next week—Monday, WCAE, at 10 p. m.; Thursday, WJAS, at 10 p. m., and Saturday, WJAS, at 9:15 p. m.

Howard Thurston, the internationally-known magician, is to open a two-a-week series over an NBC hookup November 3 . . . The inauguration of the series also will mark his radio debut.

CBS has announced that beginning at 6 p. m. November 8, it will have a 30-minute report of election returns, followed periodically by five-minute reports throughout election night until the final outcome is conceded or officially announced. NBC's election plans have not yet been ma' known.

Football broadcasts today: Tech-Notre Dame, WCAE at 3:15 and WWSW at 3; Yale-Army, KDKA at 1:45 and WJAS at 1:30.

President Broadcasts Speech From Detroit; Seibel Network Feature

President Hoover, speaking from Detroit, again is heard over NBC and CBS coast-to-coast facilities, locally through WCAE and WJAS, tonight from 8:30 to 9:30. His address is the President's fourth radio campaign talk since he was formally notified of his nomination, others having originated in Washington, Des Moines and Cleveland.

Making his third NBC network appearance, George Seibel, literary and dramatic critic of the Sun-Telegraph, is heard over an extensive hookup, including WCAE, tonight from 6:30 to 6:45 in a discussion of "New Books and Plays in New York." In order that Pittsburgh listeners may tune in on Mr. Seibel's talk, the news broadcast by Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, usually heard at 6:30, is scheduled from 6:20 to 6:29 p. m. for tonight only.

Mr. Seibel

Rear Admiral Frank Brooks Upham, chief of the Bureau of Navigation of the Navy, discusses "The Birth of Our Navy," apropos of the annual celebration of Navy Day on October 27, tonight at 10:15 during the Columbia Institute of Public Affairs on WJAS.

Program Pointers

Evelyn Herbert and Robert Halliday, the internationally-known operetta stars, offer a group of selections from "Pink Lady," "The Fortune Teller," "High Jinks," "The Red Widow," "Madame Sherry" and "Firefly" as a highlight of the cigaret dance hour on WCAE tonight at 10. The rhythm is provided by Phil Harris, playing from Los Angeles and Wayne King and his orchestra . . . "The Commuters," a bright comedy of life in the suburbs, is presented by the S. R. O players under the direction of Vernon Radcliffe over KDKA at 9:30 tonight.

Miss Herbert

Rear Admiral Frank Brooks Upham, chief of the Bureau of Navigation of the Navy, discusses "The Birth of Our Navy," apropos of the annual celebration of Navy Day on October 27, tonight at 10:15 during the Columbia Institute of Public Affairs on WJAS.

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair
-With-
Patricia Pitt

October is becoming very gay in a bridal fashion, have you noticed? And today I have another marriage to talk about, added to the list already to the credit of this autumnal month.

The Rev. and Mrs. Henry Bryant Stoneham, of Charlottesville, Va., have announced the marriage of their daughter, Catherine, to Wilson Murray Carr, Jr., son of the W. Murray Carrs of Pittsburgh, and formerly of Baltimore, which took place Wednesday, October 12, in Charlottesville.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of the University of Virginia, and he is now taking a post-graduate course at the same school.

Seen at Concert

There's something intimate about the concerts at Carnegie Music Hall that one doesn't feel so easily at Syria Mosque, have you noticed? Last night when Albert Spalding, violinist, gave the Art Society such a marvelous program for the opening of the season in Carnegie Music Hall, there was a current of sympathy, understanding, of awareness between the artist and his audience.

I saw ever so many folk there that one doesn't always see everywhere else. Winsome Rosemary Casey, the young playwright, I had a glimpse of; she wore black chiffon and brief tailored jacket of white lapin.

During the one intermission, a satisfyingly long one, folks walked about in the foyer and corridors, greeting friends. In one group were the Willis McCook Reeds, Mrs. Lewis A. Park and Mrs. David Meade Gilmore.

In Black Velvet

Mrs. Reed wore over her black velvet gown a dahlia-red velvet jacket with bands of mink near the cuffline. An exquisite gown of garnet red bagheera, that fascinating uncut velvet, was worn by Mrs. Park.

Elizabeth Jenkins, in a white crepe gown cut high in front and into a deep v in back, had long jade green beads at the girdle as the only ornament. The bodice was cut at the shoulder line to cover the top of the upper arm.

And her wrap was ever so attractive, one of the new, longer wraps. It was of sapphire blue velvet, fitted to the figure, and having the new styled sleeves, cut very wide to the elbow, and then fitted to the arm.

Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins accompanied her daughter. Others I noticed were Mrs. George C. Burgwin in black chiffon with bands of sequins covering the shoulder, Mrs. A. W. Sherrill and Mrs. George S. Baton.

Gown of Chiffon

Louise Evans chose a black crepe frock with a fichu effect in white crepe, Mrs. James O. Flower was there, and Mrs. James Madison Graham.

Mrs. John W. Lawrence chose black velvet with brief capes of white ermine over the shoulders. With her were her two nieces, Mary Louise Flinn and Nancy Patterson.

Accents Of White

Mrs. Herbert DuPuy, in black velvet with accents of white, was there with her daughter, Mrs. Frederic Ickes Merrick, and her little granddaughter, Rosetta.

Mrs. William Maclay Hall I had a glimpse of, Mrs. John E. Nelson, Mrs. Sidney A. Chalfant, and Mrs. William R. Jarvis, Mrs. George M. Laughlin III, the Hanson Roses, the David Craigs, Mrs. George E. Tener, Mrs. Tracy W. Guthrie, the Edward Pitcairns, the B. R. B. Townsends, Mrs. David Gillespie, the John Follansbees and young Betty Shaw.

Miss Helen Rauh was with Jeannie Breidson, young violinist, who wore a simple frock of buttercup yellow crepe.

Many Patrons Give Aid To Dracomtra Players

The Dracomtra Players, South Hills Community Theater, which will give its first play of the season, "Journey's End," October 27 and 28 in Fellowship Hall, Mt. Lebanon Baptist Church, has many patrons.

Among them are Miss Irene R. Blank, Miss Ketherine M. McKinney, the Rev. and Mrs. Edward Bleakney, Lon Russell, Miss Sarah Ewalt, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Haddock, Dr. and Mrs. R. W. Dunlop, Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Ewalt, Mr. and Mrs. J. Leigh Shields, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Glass, Miss Mae O'Donnell, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hissrich, Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Nichols, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Moses and Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Brown.

Others are Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Bartley, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. O'Donnell, Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Fung, Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Johns, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Baer, Mr. and Mrs. James Kommer, Mrs. C. Walker, Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Ewalt, Jr., Edward O'Donnell, Henry Tuggle, William Fecke, Emma Shauer, Mr. and Mrs. M. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bainbridge.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Wood are patrons, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Klein, Henry Johns, George Giltenboth, Milton Frankel, Woodrow Miller, David Jones, Mr. and Mrs. W. Hess, Mary B. Scanlon, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Mullert, Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Bates.

Other names will be announced on November 1.

Miss Louise E. Baldus Weds Russell Campbell

Mrs. Helen Baldus, of Springdale, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Louise Elizabeth Baldus, to Russel P. Campbell, son of Capt. and Mrs. E. K. Campbell, of Tarentum, which was solemnized in Turtle Creek on May 10.

Miss Arrie E. Rogers Visiting in New York

Miss Arrie E. Rogers, of Pittsburgh, is in New York, registered at the Hotel Seymour.

Hunt Breakfast Is Given at Hot Springs

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Oct. 22.—A week marked by numerous social functions of importance and the increasing growth of the fall colony at the Homestead, was climaxed today by a hunt breakfast at Meadow Lane Farm following a meet of the Bath County hounds and a bridge and backgammon tea this afternoon at the Casino.

The hunt has become an integral feature of recreational activity in the colony and today's drag, led by Mrs. Fay Ingalls, M. F. H., found scores of colonists following the hounds. Mrs. Allan M. Hirsh entertained for more than 100 at her hunt breakfast at Meadow Lane Farm.

The bridge and backgammon tea at the Casino this afternoon attracted scores of colonists. Those of prominence having tables were Mrs. Julian W. Robbins, Baroness Rosenkrantz, Miss Mary D. Brooks, Mrs. Charles M. Brooks, Mrs. Henry Martyn Alexander, Mrs. Richmond A. Ware, Mrs. Gustavus F. Swift, Mrs. William Van Doren Wright, Mrs. Robert Mallory, Mrs. Lawrence Lewis Gillespie, Marchesa Carignani, Mrs. Alfred C. Uihlein, Mrs. J. William Kilbreth, Mrs. Frank B. Kellogg, Mrs. John D. Beals, Jr., Mrs. Edward V. Hartford and Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock.

The coming week will witness the return of Miss Mabel Choate, Mrs. William Welch Collin, of Pittsburgh; Mr. and Mrs. William A. W. Stewart with a group of friends; Mr. and Mrs. W. Lockhart Gordon, Mrs. Edward M. Fielding, Mrs. Paul H. Denning, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Eaton and a host of others.

Mrs. Bernhard Hostess For Literary Review

Mrs. Charles Bernhard, of Orchlee street, will be hostess for Friday's meeting of the Literary Review of the North Side. Study of medieval drama will be continued, Mrs. Frank W. Murphy giving the paper; Mrs. Clifford Russell will review "Call Home the Heart," and Miss Sara J. Logan, J. T. Adams' "The Epic of America."

Miss Elizabeth Hamilton will describe her "Days Abroad" and a paper on "Archeological Pursuits in Pennsylvania" will be presented by Mrs. Stephen A. Staege. Songs by Mrs. Hannah Forney, accompanied by Mrs. George Herwig, will complete the program.

Miss Charlotte Watson Weds New Castle Man

Mr. and Mrs. William Watson, of Shady avenue, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Charlotte Watson, to Louis B. McConaghy, of New Castle, Pa., which was solemnized at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning in the East End Christian Church.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of blue velvet with matching accessories, and carried orchids. The bridesmaids, Miss Jane Rebele and Miss Mary Wurtz, wore gowns in lapis blue with matching accessories and carried yellow roses. Thomas Boltz, of Akron, O., was best man and ushers were Neil Watson and Robert McConaghy.

After a southern wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. McConaghy will reside in Akron, O.

Ellis Alumnae to Roll Bandages for Hospital

Bandages will be rolled for the Children's Hospital by members of the Ellis Alumnae Association after they have completed their business meeting on Monday. They are to meet with Miss Katharine Shuman, of Sheridan avenue. Two scholarships have been provided from the proceeds of last month's benefit bridge.

Brighton Women's Club To Aid Blind at Sale

The Brighton Women's Club is always one of the most active organizations in behalf of the blind. The annual sale of articles made by the sightless will be held November 3 at Mrs. Charles Kolb's home, Grenet street, and there will be a tea in conjunction with the sale.

St. Stephen's Sodality To Give Party Oct. 28

A reception and card party will be held by St. Stephen's Sodality, Hazelwood, in the school auditorium, North Elizabeth street, on Friday evening, October 28. Miss Anne Conway is general chairman.

Sororities Hold Bridge, 'Rush' Parties

This is the busy season for sororities and fraternities, what with rushing season, bridge parties and dances to open the fall season.

The 1932-33 rushing season of the Kappa Alpha Tau Sorority was initiated October 16 at the Garden Tea Room with a tea. Covers were laid for 15. The ushers were Miss Sonia Gutmacher and Miss Rose Fairman.

Plans are being made for the annual benefit bridge of the Pittsburgh Alumnae Chapter of Sigma Kappa Sorority at Kaufmann's Saturday, November 12.

Mission Union to Hold 2-Day Study Session Here Next Week

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

A two-day mission study program has been planned for Wednesday and Thursday by the Woman's Missionary Union of Allegheny County co-operating with the Council of Churches. Both days' meetings will be in the First English Lutheran Church.

On Wednesday at 1:30, with Mrs. Harry G. Samson presiding, the Rev. Dr. Jacob Simpson Payton will speak on "The Responsibility of Women to the Community" and Miss Ora Haft will discuss "Facing the Future in Indian Missions." Miss Haft has had 24 years experience with American Indians in the West and Alaska.

On the foreign work program on Thursday Mrs. Harry B. Hollister will review the early chapters of her own book, "Lady Fourth Daughter of China," at the morning session, and, after devotions in the afternoon, the subsequent chapters will be taken up for study. Mrs. Hollister has a wealth of background in missionary work. Her parents and her husband were missionaries to China and she herself was an appointed missionary.

Daughters of Pioneers To Meet Here on Oct. 27

The College Club will be the scene of the annual national convention of the Daughters of American Pioneers on October 27. The convention opens with a luncheon and a reception for visiting delegates will be held in the evening.

The Keystone Chapter, which is the local organization, was entertained Saturday by Mrs. H. R. Stuckslager and Mrs. Elliott Thomas, Bailey avenue, McKeesport.

State Welfare Head to Talk At Congress

"The Welfare Dollar" is the subject upon which Mrs. Alice Liveright, secretary of the Pennsylvania Department of Welfare, will speak before the Legislative Council at its meeting in the Congress of Clubs on Tuesday.

Prior to her position in the Governor's cabinet, Mrs. Liveright was active in social and civic work in Philadelphia. She is a former president of the Juvenile Aid Society of that city and served as chairman of the All-Philadelphia Conference in 1928. Her work as a member of the board of the board of the Federation of Jewish Charities o Philadelphia also gave her unusual opportunities of understanding city welfare problems. Reservations for the luncheon meeting are to be made with Mrs. W. M. Parrish not later than Monday noon.

COLOR COMBINATIONS HAVE NEW TREATMENT IN FALL CLOTHES

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Oct. 22.—There is a tendency toward a change in the way colors are combined in a single costume. At least this is the evidence given out in the collections of the majority of fashion designers in Paris. There is less frequency of the dress of one color trimmed with another color and an increse of the costumes which combine two and sometimes three colors right in the fabric.

* * *

HAND-MADE fabrics get at this new fashion in one way. Materials are woven with threads of two colors, and are so ingeniously planned that the effect is not a mottled one, but really a two-color combination.

* * *

THE FABRICS done by the house of Maggy-Rouff are excellent examples. In many cases the threads of one of the colors extend beyond the selvedges, in solid-color fringes.

* * *

JUST SUCH a fabric has been used for this Maggy-Rouff coat. The material is a coarse homespun, with the texture of the weave obviously done in mottled beige, in one direction, and in dark blue the other. The dark blue yarns form little fingers that have been used to edge collar, pockets and little top-sleeves. The big glass buttons are in matching blue.

* * *

ANOTHER ingenious two-color combination is done in the Heim dress, which is black velvet striped in gray. Scarf collar and wide belt are of self-fabric.

Women Voters' League To Hold Meetings, Tea

Mrs. A. L. Fillmore, chairman of the Twenty-fifth Ward League of Women Voters, announces a meeting for Tuesday evening in the North Side Y. M. C. A. Party issues will be discussed by representatives from the Republican, Democratic and Socialist parties, and a social hour with refreshments will follow.

The Thirty-second Ward League will open its season with a tea on Wednesday afternoon in the Municipal Building. Mrs. F. O. Graham is to speak on "Why This League of Women Voters." A play by the Dormont-Mt. Lebanon league will be a second feature of the afternoon's program.

The Swissvale league will have its opening meeting on Friday afternoon in the Wilkins School, Braddock avenue. Representatives from the Republican, Democratic and Socialist parties will discuss party platforms.

Wobbling Indecision Often Has Unhappy Results

"I love you; I love you not; I love you."

That's the theme song which Doris has been crooning ever since her heart started to go pit-a-pat,

And not for one man only.

Every little while Doris starts to get married, then doesn't, whereupon all sorts of heart-breaking consequences happen.

Which, according to Doris, are all the other fellow's fault.

Do you think that's the truth? Is Doris the innocent victim in the following scenario, or is she just a sweet young girl trying to raise Cain?

FAMILY OBJECTED

"Dear Sally:

"Last year, just a month before I was to be married, I broke my engagement. The morning of that day I met a man I had gone with for about a year before I was engaged. I began going with him again, and he told me he loved me. As time went on I grew to love him more than anything in the world.

"There was only one thing wrong. My family objected to him because our religions were different, so when he asked me to marry him I hesitated. My brother and sister-in-law liked him, and said I should decide definitely. Finally I did—to give him up. He carried on something terrible, and begged my sister-in-law to talk to me, telling her he loved me more than anything on earth and could never be happy without me. I relented, and began seeing him again.

"That was two months ago. Then, all of a sudden, my sister-in-law informed me that Fred wouldn't be at a party we were going to, because he was married and had introduced her and my brother to his wife. I told her I didn't believe it; that he wouldn't do such a thing. The next morning I phoned him and demanded an explanation. We arranged a meeting and I met his wife.

WANTS TO FORGET

"Last week he called up and asked if I would see him. Foolishly, I consented. He told me he still loved me, and the only reason he married was because he thought it best, on account of his religion making him undesirable to my family.

"Oh, Sally! I love him in spite of everything! I want him to be happy. But he keeps calling me, telling me he loves me and wants to see me. I don't want to get mixed in any scandal, because I do love him so much. I'm trying hard to get over it. I'm learning to play golf and tennis. I swim, and go in for all kinds of sports. I keep on until I'm exhausted, but in spite of everything, as soon as I relax, my mind wanders to him. I don't want to see him—yet I do. Please help me. Tell me how to handle this situation. I am so unhappy and wretched.

"DORIS."

Unhappy and wretched? You should be! And I haven't a particle of sympathy for either of you. Particularly for you, lady.

According to your own report, you've let your emotions ramble around like a dish of spaghetti. Anyone but you, yourself, could make up your mind for you, and as the natural and inevitable consequence of your wobbling, you lost your man.

STOP SEEING HIM

And now that he has finally put his life in order, you're going to do some more wobbling and mess things up again.

The man may be a cad, but you're just as bad, Doris.

You wobbled yourself into this mess, and now you're trying to whine yourself out of it. And all the time you're trying to put the responsibility on the other fellow. Nothing doing! You're stirring up this mess, and you darned well know it. So cut out the bluff, and if you really want help (which I doubt), get busy and act regular.

Stop trying to see this man. Refuse to answer him if he phones. He married this girl in good faith, and he'll probably stick by her if you'll stop seeing him.

Moreover, chances are you can find some honest, clean happiness and romance for yourself if you'll cut out this act. It's a cinch, sister, that you'll find nothing but misery if you go on with it.

'FAERY-TALES'

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

Gloriette joyously calls the enchanting tales of the story-teller LOVE—Faery-tales—but True!

Dolorosa sadly calls them—Fiction—pure and simple!

But Dolorosa, though she may have met up with a shimmering dream too good to be true in any case, and had her bubbles turn to just drops of soap-suds, still comes to listen along with optimistic Gloriette to the tales read with all the embroidery that the oldest god knows how to use.

There is an old picture that I saw as a child pinned to a screen, called "Faery-Tales." An old, old gran'-mother sits in a spell-bound circle of youngsters with upraised hand and bright face. The magic light from an attic window falls in golden halos and silver on the heads of the children and the ancient dame. This picture in memory has always lent a glow to both the life of imagination and that of reality, for me.

That other teller of tales to an enraptured circle is older than any gran'mother—and his tales, for those who have found happiness in love, even long ago, gilds the world until its dinginess shows but dimly through.

NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Between You and Me

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In the course of a card game one player (meaning a confidence) said to another: "Between you and I." The player he had spoken to corrected him and said "Between you and me."

An argument followed. Though I was not involved in the argument, I think they were both wrong. I think they should have said speaking in confidence or confidentially speaking. Please advise. FRANK.

There are two questions, really, involved in your question. The person might have said either "speaking in confidence" or "confidentially speaking." Or he might have said "between you and me."

But "between you and I" is not correct. Between is a preposition, and should be followed by the objective case. Me is the objective case, while I is the nominative case.

And how very often we hear this ear-grating mistake!

Hotel Registering

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—How do a mother and her grown daughter register at a hotel? Is it "Mrs. J. B. Brown and daughter" or "Mrs. J. B. Brown and Miss M. Brown"?

2—Should one always leave one's key at the desk of the hotel when going out for a short while?

3—How should one ask for it? Should one say Room 626, or should the name be given to the clerk at the desk?

INQUIRER.

1—The latter form is the more nearly correct. The addition of "and daughter" to the mother's name would imply that the daughter is not a "grown daughter."

But the form would be improved by the use of the names, rather than of initials. Like this:

Mrs. Jonathan Brown, New York
Miss Marguerite Brown,
New York

2—This is just as you wish, as you find convenient. Usually hotel keys are such large and ponderous affairs that a woman finds it not too convenient to carry one in her purse, and so she leaves it at the desk when she goes out. But, if it is a small one, and if she doesn't want the bother of asking for it each time she comes in, it is quite all right for her to carry it with her.

3—Usually we ask for the key by giving the number of the room to the desk clerk. Unless the clerk has a phenomenal memory, or unless we have been at the hotel for some time and are well known, it means an extra wait for us when, naturally, he has to consult his registry-file to see what is the number of our room.

Contract Bridge

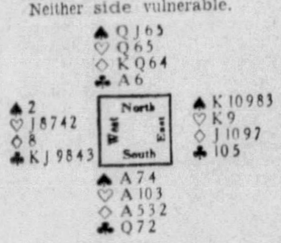
HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Suicide Squeeze

There is a type of squeeze which is rather rare at the Contract table, but is exceedingly spectacular and effective when the opportunity for its use is presented. This squeeze involves the throwing in of a chosen opponent, in order that he may be permitted to cash winning tricks, but in the end be forced to make a lead from his remaining holdings advantageous to the Declarer. Occasionally, there are hands on which the distribution is revealed in such a manner as to make the play almost self-evident. Such was the following hand, played recently in a Duplicate tournament:

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 N T	Pass	2 N T	Pass
3 N T	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding requires no special comment, as notrump is obviously the best declaration in the combined hands.

West chose for his Opening lead the club 8, probably his best Opening, taking everything into consideration. As the cards lay, the lead of either of his singletons would have made the play difficult, indeed, but this West did not consider that such leads would enhance the partnership interests. The first trick was won with the club Queen in the closed hand, and two rounds of diamonds disclosed that there was no possibility of securing four tricks in the diamond suit. Winning the second round of diamonds in the Dummy, the spade Queen was then led for a finesse, East played the King, and when South returned the second round of spades, hoping to find a break in that suit, he was able to read quite accurately the suit distribution in both the East and West hands, and the Declarer thereby was afforded the opportunity to force West to apply the "suicide squeeze" to East.

On the Sixth round of play, the club Ace was cashed in Dummy, and the Declarer then returned to his own hand by leading the third round of diamonds. On the eighth trick, West was thrown in the lead and permitted to cash four rounds of clubs, but East and West could win no other tricks, and South was thus enabled to make his contract.

TODAY'S QUESTION

What is the correct response to an Opening two-spade bid, holding the following hand:

♠ 9 7 4 ♡ 9 6 5 2 ◇ Q 9 6 ♣ A 8 3

Answer. Two notrump. The hand lacks adequate trump support, has no biddable suit and does not contain 1½ honor-tricks.

'Let the Baby Have It!'

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

Much resentment, often quite amazing to the parents, is caused by the parents' own attitude toward the baby of the family and an older child.

First there is the fuss and commotion over the newcomer's arrival, at which time the older child usually feels left out. Later the second stage of resentment is quickly built up by parents who feel that the older child should give up a good many of its rights to the infant.

A baby has his rights, but the first-born has his, too. It is unfair and dangerous to impose too much upon the older child's good nature in demanding that he always give in to the little fellow.

The older child should be made to feel that his younger brother or sister is a weaker, more helpless human being and that it is therefore his responsibility to look out for the baby. But the words, "Give it to baby," can knock down even this deep-rooted human urge to protect the younger person, if carried on until the older one gets to thinking of the baby as the cause of constant and unjustified self-sacrifice.

There are articles and toys that should belong to the baby. On the other hand, there are beloved possessions that the older child should never be asked to relinquish in favor of the younger.

In your concern over the baby's rights, don't think he is benefiting by always being the victor. To the contrary, you are building a selfish, domineering individual when you let baby know that, because he is younger, he will always be favored.

He will know it, never fear. He will soon learn that the magic words "Give it to baby" are open sesames to all his desires, and he will be horribly upset if everyone in his small world doesn't cater to his will because of his tender age.

Household Hints

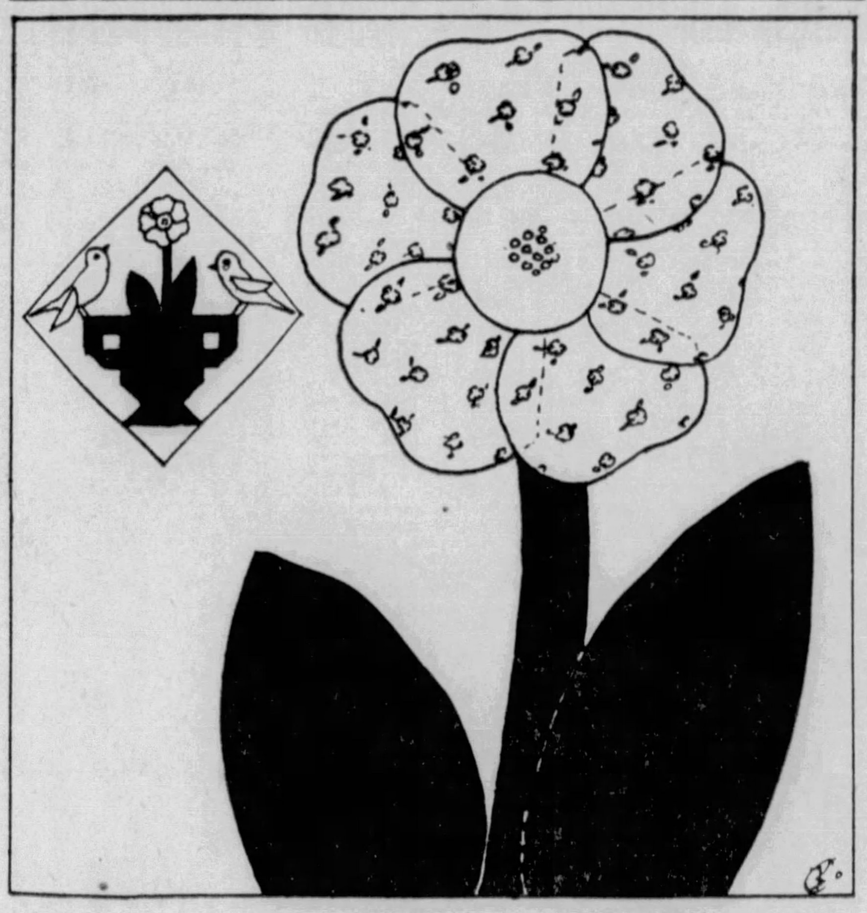
Batter puddings will be lighter if two teaspoonfuls of ground rice are added to the flour before mixing.

When growing slips of vines indoors use a glass vase to hold them. Then the sun can get to their roots.

Warm milk applied to the leather furniture with a soft cloth and then rubbed until dry will clean it wonderfully.

Nancy Page Quilt Club

By Florence La Ganke



Garden Bouquet Quilt -- Block 9 -- Primrose

A DIRECTION LEAFLET that will aid in making the Garden Bouquet Quilt will be sent free to any reader sending a stamped, addressed envelope to Nancy Page, in care of this paper.

When Nancy showed the primrose pattern there was a chorus of disapproval. "Oh, no, Nancy, you can't have a patterned petal. Why, a primrose has petals of plain color." "That's true, I know. But the primrose petals are often of a deeper color as they reach the center of the flower than when they are at the petal tips. That is difficult to show in applique unless one dyes the material. I thought I'd draw the design with small figures in it, but you may use plain color if you want. The innermost circle, though, is usually quite light, and it has stamens in it of a darker color. I suggest that you work those in color-fast embroidery cotton.

"Now, for the flowers themselves, you have wide choice of colors. Some primrose blossoms are yellow, others are apricot, there is a purplish blue. I have seen them in lilac shades, in purples and even in crimsons. You see, this gives us a splendid chance to use odd scraps of material. Don't have the colors too strong or violent, for then it makes one flower stand out from the rest of the quilt. And besides that, it makes it difficult to put the quilt in various bedrooms. Pastel colors allow one to cover the bed in any room, whether it be a blue, a pink, an orchid, a yellow or a green bedroom."

The primrose with the two birds, the saucy and the meek one, are appliqued on the upper triangle of white, which is seamed to a lower triangle of the pieced urn. The two triangles unite to make a diamond block which when finished is 12 by 12.

The upper triangle is cut 12½ by 12½ by 17½. The half inches are used in seaming pieces together so that the finished block measures 12 by 12. The leaves used in the design today are nice big fat ones. They are made of green color-fast gingham or other soft material. The stem is made of same material or of bias tape in green.

The pattern as given is traced lightly on the triangle of white. Then it is traced again on lightweight cardboard. The original with its accompanying directions is put in Nancy Page scrap book. The cardboard design is cut into its pieces, which are laid on the material from which the flower and leaves will be made.

In cutting, a quarter-inch on all sides is allowed for turning under raw edges. The petals of the primrose are all alike, so only one cardboard pattern is needed. The dotted lines show the overlapping of one petal on another. It is best to cut them full size, however—they hold their shape better.

After the pieces are cut, raw edges basted under and pressed, the pieces are pinned in place and then appliqued with fine invisible hemming stitches. The flowers and leaves may be appliqued with buttonhole stitch. In this case cut pieces exact size, since edges do not need to be turned under. The design may be worked in outline stitch or it may be filled in with colored crayons. Pressing these crayoned places with a hot iron sets the color.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Laxative Habit Is Harmful

In a medical survey recently published, many interesting facts were brought to light concerning constipation. It reminded me that too little attention is given the danger, the real menace, attaching to habitual use of laxatives.

Here is a thing I urge my readers to remember: Constipation is never cured by laxatives. On the contrary, their prolonged use tends to increase rather than to decrease the tendency towards constipation.

Dr. Copeland.

Unfortunately, too many individuals believe that when there is any abdominal pain or difficulty in normal elimination, it is time to use a strong laxative. This is a dangerous practice. The pain or discomfort may be due to acute appendicitis, and if this is the case great harm is done by taking a cathartic.

When the pain or discomfort, on the other hand, is due to faulty elimination, a laxative does not remove the irritation. It aggravates rather than soothes the lining of the diseased bowel.

Many chronic sufferers from constipation will agree with my statement that the continuous use of laxatives is worthless. They know, by experience, that it is necessary after a time to increase the amount of the laxative, or change to a new one, in order to produce results. There can be no doubt whatever of the harmful results of continued use of strong purges.

There are other reasons, too, why cathartics should not be taken. The laxative often forces food along so rapidly that its value to the body is lost. In other cases undigested food is carried into the large intestine, and this encourages the growth of bacteria and tends to increase the amount of poisons present in the system.

Continued use of a laxative so irritates the mucous membrane lining of the intestine that it may lead to persistent colitis, which is most difficult to cure. So, if you are a sufferer from constipation, do not resort to patent medicines, and by all means avoid the use of strong laxatives.

Try to determine the underlying cause of the constipation. It may be due to faulty diet, to improper and faulty posture, to fatigue, or to lack of excerise, as well as the continued and unnecessary use of laxatives. When these faults are corrected, permanent cure may be effected.

There is no doubt that the wrong diet in most cases is the chief factor. Unless you eat wisely and temperately of the right things you are sure to develop some form of digestive or intestinal disturbance.

POLITICAL TALK BUSINESS NARCOTIC

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Business in the present breathing spell appears to be lulled to a position of comparative complacency by the narcotic of political oratory.

Within the coming four months, however, it must come to grips with the realities.

In spite of the improvement in total economic activity since July, it is still doubtful whether the gross realized national income for the year will exceed $50,000,000,000, as compared with $84,000,000,000 in 1928.

Mr. Rukeyser

It is quite clear that business cannot wear its misfit financial clothing — its capitalization is based on prices and gross volume obtaining in 1928-29—indefinitely, though it has been feasible to do so for a year or so. Business can only carry on for a short time — perhaps not much more than a year in all, and it is already near the end of that period—with the current disparity between gross volume of business and capitalization.

CAPITALIZATION HIGH

For a period of months, it has been able to struggle through without much inroads into the accumulated wealth. Moreover, it has been possible temporarily to meet excessive capital charges, but many concerns are near the end of their rope. If, for example—to consider a pessimistic assumption—the $50,000,000,000 national realized income is the new normal, then the interest and amortization charges on the present capitalization of American corporations are inordinately high, and add too much to the cost of production.

There are two alternative ways out. The easiest, pleasantest and most desirable route would be to promote the gross volume of American business sufficiently to make it possible to continue the present setup. Accordingly, when, for example, Gov. Roosevelt in his Topeka address spoke of a formula for raising the purchasing power of farmers, he was dealing with a theme that should be very close to the hearts of those with vested investment interests which they hope to conserve. Likewise, other measures, such as unemployment relief through speeding up construction projects—including public works and semi-public works and slum clearance—which would bring the economically disinherited back into the market for merchandise, have a distinct bearing on this larger financial problem of bringing the gross volume of total business into line with the capitalization of American corporations.

If all measures to increase gross volume substantially fail, then business will seek relief in the uglier way of scaling down capital charges. Business companies have only five ways to adjust themselves to a substantial decline in gross volume of business, and thus far they have already availed themselves of the first three, in this order: Savings on payroll through discharge of workers, secondly, disappearance of profits, and thirdly, through wage rate reductions. The other two entail falling behind on interest and defaulting on principal.

WAY TO DEFEAT

That second alternative of cutting down capital charges is the darker and less civilized procedure, and could be accomplished only with widespread human suffering and inequitable transference of economic power.

It is the way of defeat and despair. Management in the large—intelligent business and finance, co-operation with progressive government—can find ways to avoid such a ghastly method. Yet business is coming near the period when it must make a choice.

Already the American standard of living has been seriously impaired. It has been estimated that the average industrial wage, including adjustments for unemployment and wage cuts, has declined from $5 a day in 1929 to $3.25 to $3.50 in 1932, while the agricultural wage has fallen to $2.75 a day, including non-cash values received. Thus, the declining standard of agricultural return has been tending to pull down industrial standards to its depreciated level.

Because farm and urban incomes tend to reach an equilibrium, making interchange of hours of labor feasible, it behooves those in the cities to interest themselves in problems of the farmer.

The choice is not whether there is to be a balance which economic forces will inevitably bring about, but at what level of living standards such an equilibrium should be found.

Likewise, with capital charges reduced, even if gross business should not be raised a balance would in time be sought at this prevailing low level through scaling down capital charges.

The disequilibrium cannot endure very much longer. And even the socializing of losses through advances by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation only postpones the day of reckoning, and gives an interlude for the solution of problems.

COST OF OFFICE CONTEST HIGH

FRANKLIN, Pa., Oct. 22.—The contest brought by supporters of J. Frank Horner, in the disputed election for county commissioner last November, means an expense of $25,000 to $50,000 for Venango County taxpayers, officials said today. Each of the three commissioners receives an annual salary of $3,000. The election of John E. Ritchey is contested by Horner supporters, because the combined vote of J. Frank Horner and J. F. Horner, the two names being on the same ballot, was not allowed. The combined vote would exceed Ritchey's.

Orders were issued to impound all ballot boxes, necessitating 76 new boxes at $5 each, all 76 justices of the peace in the county will be subpenaed with the impounded boxes, and 500 witnesses, comprising election boards of five members, with expenses of $3 a day each and mileage.

Taxpayers are amazed over the expense of the appeal to State Supreme Court. The suit arose from failure to discover a duplicate of names on the ballot.

McCloskey to Speak At Sharpsburg Rally

Mayor Eddie McCloskey, of Johnstown, will speak at a Democratic rally in Sharpsburg Tuesday night. Other speakers will be B. B. McGinnis, former United States District Attorney; Twing Brooks, candidate for Congress from the Thirtieth District, and Donald Licker, who will preside. Sharpsburg is the largest Democratic town in Allegheny County.

Bites Strap in Two, Prevents Suicide

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Using his teeth to cut through a strap, John Hayda, farm hand, cut down John Kosa, 45, of Bangor, who was said by Hayda to have attempted to hang himself in his barn. Hayda said no knife was available. He summoned help after finding Kosa was alive.

Phila. Bars Police From Fraternity

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Mayor J. Hampton Moore has permitted a councilmanic ordinance intended to prevent city police from enrolling in the Fraternal Order of Police, a national organization with headquarters in Pittsburgh, to become a law without his signature.

Acmetonia Man Held After Raid on Still

Vincent Yershezar, 40, of Acmetonia, was held for court at a hearing last night before Justice of the Peace Earl Shoop, of Springdale, after Constables William Smolder and George Beck, of Harmar Township, testified they found a 300-gallon still in operation when they raided his home.

Farmers Fight Rats To Save Corn Crop

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 22.—(AP.) Farmers in this section have declared war on rats now making their headquarters in a closed mine. The rats were having a harvest on the corn crop.

PRICE DECLINES HIT BEATRICE CREAMERY

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—The final half of Beatrice Creamery Company's current fiscal year, which ends February 28, will probably show little, if any, profit. Not only is the best part of its year now behind it, but Beatrice still has to contend against a loss in volume and reduced selling prices.

Consumption of Beatrice's products, butter, milk, ice cream and eggs, has tended downward this year despite low prices and will likely remain low throughout the winter in view of the unemployment and reduced purchasing power now current. Prices, however, are currently steadier than they have been for some time, but continue low. Consequently profit margins are extremely narrow.

DIVIDEND NEEDS

For the current year, Beatrice will need about $772,000 to cover dividend requirements on its own 7 per cent preferred and $9,675 for dividends on subsidiary preferred stocks. For the six months ended August 31, net profits of $694,435 was equal, after preferred dividend needs, to 81 cents a share on 377,719 shares of common stock. Company paid out $1.50 a share on the common this year in the form of one regular quarterly dividend of $1 and one of 50 cents. The October 1 common disbursement was omitted.

The year ended February 29, 1932, Beatrice earned $2,111,143, equal after preferred dividends paid during the year.

SALES VOLUME OFF

Indicative of the extent the decline in volume and dollar sales has affected Beatrice's net for the first half this year, and also the minor place of final half earnings in the full year, the company reported for the six months ended August 31, 1931, net of $1,882,779, equal to $4.07 a share on 372,241 shares of common stock then outstanding. Net in the last half of fiscal year 1931-1932 amounted to only $228,364. Last fiscal year, however, reflected larger inventory charge-offs than will likely be the case this year in view of the fact that current prices are running along a pretty even course whereas the final months of 1931 and the early part of 1932 saw precipitate downward movements, including adjustments to a lower rate of milk prices.

Present milk business is being done on price scales which have been in effect for several months and are not likely to be revived downward again.

U. S. TO RETURN SEIZED GOODS

An opinion yesterday in Federal Court by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker held that furnishings seized by dry agents in the club house of the Arbeiter Gesang Verein, in Erie were not, with the exception of barroom fixtures, liable to forfeiture to the government. The court said a decree can be presented for return of the property.

The court held 17 chairs, three tables, a clock, cash register, and electric fan seized in the barroom were subject to forfeiture. Under the ruling articles to be recovered by the club include stoves, an adding machine, 200 glasses, nine tables, two pianos and other furniture and dishes.

New State Capitol Imprisons Sparrows

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Hunger and exhaustion may bring freedom for half a dozen sparrows trapped in the House chamber of Nebraska's new Capitol.

The birds stay near the 30-foot ceiling. They have almost worn themselves out dashing at windows, closed lest more birds follow. C. F. Fowler, architect, believes that the sparrows eventually will fall to the floor and enable caretakers to put them outside.

Czechoslovakian Cabinet to Quit

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—President Thomas G. Masaryk today awaited resignation of Premier Frantisek Udrzal and his cabinet. Owing to the premier's reported illness, the ministerial council decided last night to ask resignation of the government. It is expected a new cabinet headed by Jan Malypetr will be named officially tomorrow or Monday.

New Fireproofing Sales Head Named

Ernest T. Giles has been elected vice president in charge of sales of the National Fireproofing Corporation, it was announced today by the board of directors. Giles will have charge of the corporation's district offices in Pittsburgh, New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago and Birmingham. The election of L. M. Christie as vice president in charge of the conduit division also was announced.

STEEL OUTPUT HOLDING AT 20% RATE

By B. E. V. LUTY

Steel demand seems to have reached a steady gait, as ingot production this week may be estimated at 20 per cent of capacity the same as for the last two weeks. There had been a rise of about six points in as many weeks.

Continuance of the present rate for the remainder of the month would put October tonnage at 15 per cent over the September rate, which was 22 per cent over August, making 46 per cent gain for two month.

All precedents show that no large part of a 40 per cent increase in steel demand can be ascribed to seasonal influence. The chief seasonal increases observed have been in farmer buying, which is far from heavy, and in standard pipe. Increases were chiefly general in character, due to the slightly improved condition and outlook in general trade.

Steel producers are virtually unanimous in holding that the close approach of the election has been a restrictive influence to further expansion in demand at this time. They expect further improvement after the election, but at a pace depending on the result.

SMALL BUYERS DOMINANT

The $3 reduction in the price of standard rails, to $40 per gross ton f. o. b. mill announced Thursday, is the first change since the advance of the same amount effective October 1, 1922, after railroads had been given an opportunity to cover 1923 deliveries at the old price It is fully expected to stimulate rail buying for the new season. As frequently in the past, some rails may be rolled late this year for next year's use.

Substantially all the increase in steel demand has come from miscellaneous sources rather than the familiar large lines of consumption, in connection with railroads, automobiles construction and farm implements. Any great further increase is expected to come largely from these sources.

RAILROADS NIBBLING

Railroads have begun to buy steel in a very limited way and gradual expansion is predicted on the favorabe showing freight car loadings have been making, with the additional influence now of the reduction in the rail price.

The automobile industry is proceeding at a very slow pace.

There has been scarcely any construction steel in the last few months outside of fabricated structural steel for public buildings and bridges.

The farm implement industry continues in its between-seasons period, and apparently there are no definite plans as to when manufacture of implements for spring use will begin.

Finished steel prices show no change except for the eventful one in rails. The sheet market is said to be firmer.

The scrap market has continued in its dull state and has lost a little more in general tone. Even with consumer demand very light, scrap is scarce.

AUTOISTS HELD IN ATTACK

Herman Klein, 25, of 2113 Jane street, and Ernest Welland, 24, of 104 South Twenty-first street, were held for court in South Side Police Court today on charges of assault and battery in connection with injuries received by Anna Adams, 22, of 1411 Martha street, Munhall, October 11.

Miss Adams said that the men offered to take her and Peggy Dunkle, 19, of 226 Glen Caladh street, home. At Becks Run road, she said, the door of the car flew open and she fell out. Miss Dunkle said that before they reached Beck's Run road she jumped from the car because the men were not going toward her home.

SELLING MOVE PUSHES STOCKS LOWER

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—A flurry of overnight selling orders, which reached the stock market at the opening today, subsided toward the end of the first half hour and activity turned dull, with prices at slightly lower levels.

Case, Byers, American Tobacco B and United States Steel preferred were off a point each. United States Steel common dipped a small fraction and Bethlehem was down nearly a point. Slight losses also occurred in United Aircraft, General Foods, General Motors, Chrysler, North American and Harvester. Union Pacific and Santa Fe were fractionally lower. American Telephone was firm, edging its way up about a point.

The weekly mercantile reviews reported that despite some appearance of hesitancy in business recent progress had been maintained.

Continued study was given to the effect upon railroad buying that might be expected to follow from the reduction in price of steel rails. In 1921, it was recalled, a reduction in rail prices was followed by heavy buying from the carriers. It was reasoned, however, that present day conditions were somewhat different; in 1921, the roads, when restored to private management, were eager to make necessary improvements and replacements. Today, they are guarding their expenditures with extreme caution.

The quarterly report of the General Motors Corporation caused fresh conjecture as the maintenance of the company's present common dividend showed a loss of 16 cents per common share for the September quarter, bringing nine months earnings down to 8 cents a share against $2.08 in the corresponding 1931 period. An upturn in business, starting toward the end of last August, considerably reduced the third quarter loss.

French francs gained 3-16 point at the opening to 3.94 cents. The British pound sterling quotation, which has been moving erratically, opened at $3.39¾, off 5-16 cent.

Custom Smelters Shading Copper

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Custom smelters were reported willing today to sell some copper at 6 cents a pound delivered.

They had been holding the price at 6¼ cents, but stated that stocks had begun to accumulate due principally to scrap shipments.

Shipments of finished copper and brass products to consumers were reported somewhat better. September shipments were described as the best since last spring.

Electrolytic copper was quoted at 6 cents a pound, for domestic shipment, up to the end of next March.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

Zonite Products Corporation reports for the September quarter net profit of $132,675 after charges and taxes, equal to 15 cents a share on 845,556 shares, comparing with 21 cents a share in the June quarter and 27 cents a share in the third quarter of 1931. Nine months net profit was $525,251, equal to 62 cents a share in the first nine months of 1931.

Eaton Manufacturing Company and subsidiaries, including Wilcox Rich Corporation and subsidiary (Rich Corporation) report for nine months ended September 30, last, net loss of $248,400 after all charges, including depreciation and dividends on Wilcox Rich class A stock. In the first nine months last year Eaton Axle, including Wilcox Rich and Reliance Manufacturing Company (from date of acquisition), earned net profit of $149,205 after interest, depreciation and federal taxes and Wilcox class A dividends. Third quarter net loss was $284,357 after above charges, against net loss in the third quarter of 1931 of $114,966.

William Wrigley, Jr., Company and subsidiaries report for the September quarter shows consolidated net profit of $1,701,464 after depreciation, federal taxes, etc., equal to 86c a share on 1,976,315 shares of no par stock outstanding and compares with $1,880,340 in second quarter, or 95c a share, and $3,034,609, or $1.51 a share on 2,000,000 shares in the third quarter of 1931. Consolidated net profit for nine months ended September 30 last was $5,709,210 equal to $2.88 a share on 1,976,315 shares as against $8,547,791, or $4.22 a share on 2,000,000 shares in the first nine months last year.

Midland Steel Products Company reports for nine months, ended September 30, loss of $30,405 after charges but before depreciation, compared with profit of $11,455 after depreciation and federal taxes but before profit-sharing expenses in the first nine months of 1931. Third quarter loss was $53,720 after above charges, against net loss in the preceding quarter after expenses and depreciation, and profit of $65,530 after depreciation and federal taxes but before profit-sharing in the third quarter of 1931.

Chicago Yellow Cab Company reports for the September quarter earnings of 22 cents a share, against 43 cents in the previous quarter and 56 cents in the third quarter of 1931. Nine months earnings were equal to $1.34 a share, against $2.44 in the first nine months of 1931.

Argentina Sells Grasshoppers By the Ton

ROSARIO, Argentina.—(AP.)—Grasshoppers are quoted by the ton on the floor of the Rosario Stock Exchange. A commercial firm buys the insects raked up and destroyed in Argentine grain fields and ships them to Germany for use as fertilizer. The current price is $1.25 per metric ton f. o. b. Rosario.

COURT VICTORY FOR STRAUS CO.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—The Appellate Court, Brooklyn Division, reversed late yesterday the decision of Supreme Court Justice Alfred Norton in ordering a receivership for S. W. Straus & Co., Inc.

The Appellate Court ordered the removal of the receivers on the condition that the Straus Company refrain from disposing of any of its assets.

The Appellate justices, by a 4 to 1 decision, also made the setting aside of the receivers contingent on the officers of Straus & Co. agreeing to an early trial of Attorney General John Bennett's complaint of misrepresentations in sales of stock and bonds.

The decision permits the company to continue business provided it is without "any false statements," as alleged in the Attorney General's complaint.

CAR LOADINGS GAIN 24,942

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Loading of revenue freight during the week ended October 15 totaled 650,578 cars, the highest so far this year, and an increase of 24,942 over the week preceding.

However, the latest week's total is 111,018 cars under the corresponding period in 1931.

Committee Acquires Wardman Properties

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Nine properties, located here, including the Wardman Park Hotel, Carlton Hotel and the Department of Justice building, have been sold under foreclosure of a mortgage securing an issue of $11,000,000 of bonds of the Wardman Real Estate Properites, Inc. The properties were bid in by nominees of the reorganization managers acting under a plan for the reorganization of the properties. This plan has been accepted by holders of more than 92 per cent of the bonds.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Disillusionment

Today I met them face to face,
The famous couple whose heart affairs grace
The front page of the "Tabs."
Wrapped in sables and cloth of gold,
Her lips looked pinched—her eyes were cold
And lifeless as any drab's.

They did not speak or even glance
At each other—but he eyed askance
Each woman passing by.
No little by-play, hand in hand;
No playing up to a packed grandstand.
Forgotten—the need to lie.

They sauntered down an obscure street,
Absorbed most likely in where they'd eat,
And would it be gin or rye?
Gone were the vestments and robes of romance.
She wore skirts and he wore pants,
Even as you and I.

—Anne Ambrose.

Gag

Fred Allen, the clown, reports that it happened in front of a theater housing a flop show. The ticket-taker was kicking himself to keep awake while waiting for some possible late arrivals, as the show had already started.

A porter walked out from the orchestra with his broom, and at the same time a pedestrian passed the theater and yawned.

"For heaven's sake!" screamed the box-officer to the porter, "keep that door closed. They can hear the dialogue out in the street!"

Izzy Elinsonisms

Charlie Chaplin says he'd like to play Napoleon. But how can a comedian who has been ducking pies all these years learn to keep one hand inside his coat? . . . I see several movie stars recently reported that their jewelry had been stolen. Huh. A Hollywood pawnshop must have been robbed!

So Texas Guinan has become engaged. I wonder how she found room for another ring.

In Case You Haven't

You've probably heard it before and all that, but it still remains funny. The Joe Russell favorite—about the lunatic in the asylum, who was pushing a wheel-barrow upside down.

"What's the idea?" a visitor queried.

"I'm not crazy," was the retort, "yesterday they filled it with bricks!"

Reviewing the Big Show

In "The Intimate Notebooks of George Jean Nathan," the critic discusses criticism again by picking on the biggest show of them all—like this:

"What people apparently want—and then will not read—is what they call 'serious criticism,' i. e., criticism that says nothing, but says it solemnly."

The Morning Mail

"Dear Winchell," writes Constantine E. Demetrakopoolos, "a ditchdigger handles several tons of earth for $3 a day—that's labor. A woman who can purchase a hat for $5, but prefers one for $27—that's foolish. Longfellow could take a piece of paper and write a poem on it—that's genius. The U. S. can take an ounce and a quarter of gold and make it worth $20—that's money. The sender of this paragraph could write out a check for ten million smackers, but it wouldn't be worth a cent. That's tough!"

Why Echoes Thrive

Anatole France, the chap who once said: "Every trade has a little charlatanism in it: ours (writing) has much," was a columnist at heart. Witness this counsel to his secretary, Jean Jacques Brousson:

"When a thing has been said, and well said, have no scruple: take it and copy it. Give references? Why should you? Either your readers know where you have taken the passage and the precaution is needless, or they do not know and you humiliate them."

My overcoat's in hock!

Two partners, in business together for 20 years, were parted when the senior member died. The junior member went into mourning to show his great respect.

"Too bad about Morris," said a friend when he met the mourner on the street. "Sorry to hear he is gone."

"Yes," said the junior partner, as he flicked a speck of dust from his sleeve. "I'll miss him, but what a relief it is to be out of the red for a change."

The latest of the kibitzer stories comes from The Yacht Club Boys, who canary delightfully at the Montparnasse. The scene was a Broadway gambling spot and the kibitzer was watching a "hot" man throw a dozen passes. As the big winner counted his heavy profits to himself, the nuisance looked over his shoulder.

"Do me a favor," kibitzed the kibitzer. "Please count it again. I made a mistake."

Thrill Movie Planned By RKO

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 22.—Go into any loan library and you'll find the shelves filled with shockers. So evident and constant is public taste along this line that R-K-O is planning a big production to be called "Killer at Large."

An idea of Merian C. Cooper, the picture will be just as sensational as "King Kong." And you couldn't say much more. Nearing completion after months of shooting on closed sets, the latter film will have a terrific climax. You'll see a 50-foot prehistoric ape straddling the top of the Empire State Building and cradling the heroine in its arms.

Marlene Dietrich

With Paramount using a weird tribe of "beast men" in "The Island of Lost Souls" and with Universal bringing a mummy to life in the new Karloff picture, the current screen displays a definite tendency to go fantastic.

Job of writing the new R-K-O thriller will go to Louis Weitzenhorn.

Pale and beautiful, Marlene Dietrich recently paid her first visit to the Paramount studio in nearly a month. Necks craned as she walked into the lunch room clad in neat riding clothes.

Will she sign again after her contract is over in December?

"No, no," she told me, "why should I sign? I don't like to be bound. I shall go to Europe."

What about her next picture?

"I know nothing," she said. "Joe is not here."

Everyone is talking about the gingham-covered picture frames Constance Bennett is using in her studio dressing room and in her boudoir at home. But of added interest is the fact that they were designed by Bill Haines, who makes more than a hobby out of his interior decorating business.

Bill, by the way, is planning a formal wedding, flowers, dress suits and all, for Richard Burns, his dusky chauffeur. It's to be an important fall affair in Hollywood below-stairs society!

The upshot of the Carole Lombard-Paramount argument is that Carole will go to Warners for a role more agreeable to her than the Cagney lead. She tells me that, at first, she was all thrilled over the idea of doing a picture with Jimmie. One look at the part, however, convinced her she could never do it.

Carole Lombard

Among the better squelches, contends Jerry Horwin, is the one Mervin Leroy gave to the hysterical fan sitting behind him at the U. S. C.-Loyola football game.

The Trojans were having a tough time and sorely missing their last year's fullback, Jim Musick. As plunge after plunge failed to gain, the excited fan began to screech:

"Give us Musick, give us Musick, give us Musick!"

Twisting around, Merv added snappily:

"Yes, and dancing!"

Albert Spalding, truly one of Pittsburgh's favorite violinists, played the opening concert of our Art Society in Carnegie Hall last night. There was a large audience in difficulty most of the time deciding whether it could listen to the end of the program.

That program looked very well in print, but in reality was about as dull an evening of arpeggio playing as we have heard in many years. Certainly Spalding has never before offered the like. For those who believe that in these difficult days we should hear only tried music and should foreswear contemporary works that program was the answer.

There was Debussy and Bach and Schumann without a spark of life. The Debussy Sonata is feeble music at its best. As an opening number it was hopeless. Bach is always a good keystone. And the Schumann Fantasy, which one seldom hears nowadays, is as intriguing as his symphonies, no more so. A few charming encores and the last group of shorter works brought momentary life to the evening.

I still believe that Spalding has the innate musical force to hold his place among the greatest players of today. He so fully comprehends the structure of the music he plays, his skillful fingers and polished style so easily proclaim his musicianship, his dignified austere approach to works like the Bach Sonata, and his sensitive feeling for variety of tone and rhythm so thoroughly ingratiate him into the good graces of the musician and layman alike that he will remain a welcome visitor to our concert halls for many a day.

For encores we had Willy Burmester's arrangement of a popular Mozart Minuet, Lily Boulanger's "Cortege," "Serenade Espagnole" of Chaminade-Kreisler and Spalding's own arrangement of Schubert's "Hark, Hark the Lark." Andre Benoist played accompaniments, occasionally of virtuoso quality. J. FRED LISSFELT.

Army Fliers' Stunts on Screens

THE GLOBE TROTTER

First pictures of amazing parachute jumping by United States Army airmen at Chanute Field, Ill., are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, showing in the Penn, Fulton and other theaters. Probably the most sensational performance shows a number of birdmen leaping from planes lined up in step formation, which has never before been attempted, and considered especially hazardous. However, a half dozen of the men make the jump without mishap from a distance of more than 3,000 feet. The Globe Trotter gives a description of the remarkable stunts.

In honor of Navy Day, Hearst Metrotone News presents pictures of the United States Navy in maneuvers on the Pacific. Battleships, cruisers, destroyers, submarines and the air force participate.

FRAZIER HUNT TALKS

Frazier Hunt, world traveler and correspondent for the Hearst newspapers and special writer for Cosmopolitan Magazine, just returned from a 25,000-mile trip to the trouble-spots of the world, describes his trip in a thrilling interview. He tells of his meeting with Hitler and Von Papen in Germany, and predicts serious trouble between them which may again involve all of Europe. In India he said he found most of his native friends in jail, and everyone else fighting among themselves. In Japan, and then in Manchuria, Mr. Hunt found Japs and Chinese fully determined to keep on fighting for what they regard as their rights. With vast American interests involved, Mr. Hunt calls this the worst trouble spot of all so far as the United States is concerned.

"We think we have troubles here at home," says Mr. Hunt. "We don't know what trouble is!"

MYSTIC AT WORK

Wierd and thrilling pictures come from Berlin where a Hindu seer is mystifying German audiences by his unfathomable feats. Among other things the mystic hypnotizes a rooster and then enters a cage of savage lions and apparently exorts his hypnotic influence upon them.

Members of the Veteran Wheelmen's Association are pictured as they hold a riding reunion at Gwynedd, Pa. Curious bicycles of a forgotten day are in the parade.

The closing of the eastern racing season at Empire City track is pictured. The track is a sea of mud and at the conclusion of the race, both horses and riders are almost unrecognizable.

Foggy Weather Joy Of Director

Foggy weather, usually the bane of motion picture companies on location, is being welcomed at Catalina Island these mornings by Director Erle C. Kenton, who is filming "Island of Lost Souls" for Paramount. In fact, the company goes to work at sunup before the fog lifts and continues on the scenes which require such atmospheric conditions until the sunshine burns up the mist. From mid-day on other sequences are made.

Oggie Mills Playing Role of Halloween Goblin

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Ogden Mills is distributing fear and foreboding with a lavish voice.

Oggie is afraid that a Democratic victory will wash up the works. He predicts disaster in sepulchral tones, and winds up his speech with three hearty groans for the future.

If Oggie wants to get a real gloomy outlook on things we advise him to pull a rubber boot over his head and fly blind like an aviator in a fog.

Stew bad, Oggie. But we ain't skeered. We know the goblin never did catch Little Annie Rooney. We've just have been through four years of Oggism and any change is bound to be an improvement.

Oggie is laying on the gloom thicker than ketchup on a lunch wagon steak. Even at his most optimistic tempo there is brimstone in his salt shaker and sulphur in the pepper.

Don't get scared on Halloween if you see a terrible pumpkin head in the twilight. It will only be Oggie having his campaign fun.

Radio Stars Shine in Penn

By WILLIAM PFARR

You shouldn't have any trouble whatever deciding whether to see the picture which opened at the Penn yesterday. If you like the radio stars who appear in "The Big Broadcast," why, then, go see them in the movies.

The lineup is impressive: Bing Crosby, Burns and Allen, Kate Smith, Cab Calloway, Vincent Lopez, the Mills brothers and Arthur Tracy. Hollywood additions are Stuart Erwin and Leila Hyams.

This reporter liked the entertainment because it is the nearest approach left to two-a-day vaudeville of 10 years ago.

A story is injected into the program, but it is never allowed to interfere with the entertainment. It is the story of—well, it's a story about a broadcasting station.

None of the radio stars is allowed to steal the picture, but Burns and Allen threaten. More important is that all of the other entertainers live up to expectations.

If by chance you are anti-radio, then go just to see Mickey Mouse, the First Rodent of the Land.

Tracy Swell In Warner

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"The Washington Merry-Go-Round," dramatic picture in the Warner, although full of implausibilities and disturbingly insinuative of the power of "invisible government" in relation to legislative skulduggery in our national capital, nevertheless is swell screen entertainment, strongly melodramatic, pounding out some truths in the course of its exaggerations.

Lee Tracy fans will be thrilled by his vehemence in the handling of the best role the screen has given him, permitting him a force and dash not seen in him since his portrayal of Hilary Johnson in the stage presentation of "The Front Page." His role is that of a young congressman, who knows that political leaders had him elected for their own purposes, and who arrives in Washington determined to be independent, fearless and honest. He double-crosses the bosses, and so what? And so trouble—plenty.

As for dramatic punch, consider two suicides and a murder. Also our young congressman, an ex-service man, addressing the B. E. F., in their Anacostia camp, being hooted and chased when he tells them he isn't for them. Then their help when he needs them to crush the "invisible government."

Romance comes into the picture in the form of Constance Cummings as a granddaughter of a veteran senator. Charming, too. The Senator portrayal is the fine characterization of Walter Connolly, one of our very best stage actors. Alan Dinehart makes a natural and suave "villain" in his part of the power behind the throne, and good work also is done by Frank Sheridan, as a political boss, and by Arthur Vinton, as chief of the B. E. F.

The story, by Maxwell Anderson, is not that of the book of the same title.

Barthelmess Playing in Stanley

By EDWARD W. COSS

Whatever degree of success "Cabin in the Cotton," Stanley feature, may attain will be mainly due to the acting of Bette Davis.

Miss Davis tops with ease the work of Richard Barthelmess, billed as the star, and Dorothy Jordan, playing a rival role. Dorothy's part, however, is not as large as Bette's nor does it give her much opportunity to run up and down the scale of emotion.

"Cabin in the Cotton" has to do with the conflicts between southern planters (the aristocrats) and their tenants (poor white trash). Barthelmess plays the role of a boy who is born into a family of tenants, and is educated by a planter. Bette Davis is cast as the daughter of the planter, who aided Barthelmess, and Dorothy Jordan is just "white trash" with a hankering for Barthelmess. The planter's daughter makes a brazen play for the boy's affection.

Trouble arises between the planters and tenants. Cotton is stolen, a planter and tenant are killed, thus causing more than strained relations between the two groups. Barthelmess, knowing the problems of both factions, steps into the scene as moderator and patches up the differences with a little co-operative arrangement.

Others in the picture are Hardie Albright, Tully Marshall and Henry B. Walthall. Each makes his role realistic.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Today is the last gloom day for the Nixon, where, on Monday, Ed Wynn will open an engagement in his new musical piece, "The Laugh Parade," to be shown every night except Tuesday and at three matinees, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday. Tuesday night will be given to the Wynn radio broadcast, for the benefit of the Welfare Fund. Admission to the broadcast will be $1 to all parts of the house, and all who buy seats in advance are assured of a seat, since only the capacity of the theater will be sold.

* * *

The attraction in the Pitt, beginning Monday, will be "The Vinegar Tree," a comedy that will provide a good part for each of the Edwin Vail Players.

* * *

Beginning today, the Enright will show "Bird of Paradise" on its screen for three days, with Dolores Del Rio and Joel McCrea featured.

* * *

"The Age Of Consent," featuring Arline Judge and Eric Linden, is on the Sheridan Square screen for three days.

* * *

With "Rarin' To Go" as its burlesque feature, the Academy goes into a Saturday opening policy today. The Sunday midnight show will be continued.

* * *

Monday will mark the beginning of the second week of a return showing of "Two Hearts In Waltz Time" in the Avenue Cinema. It was for this film the popular song of the same title was written.

PITT BATTLES OHIO STATE

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Fates Turn on Duquesne. Grid Gates Take Drop. Pop May Get Revenge.

More Berger Denials. Urge Loughran to Quit. Petrolle's Arm Sound.

MANY ELEVENS LAX ON EXTRA POINTS

IT'S TOUGH TO lose by one point, but the fates of football had strung along with Elmer Layden a long time in that respect before they finally turned last night to give West Virginia Wesleyan a 7-to-6 victory over Duquesne. It was only the second time since Layden came here to coach that his gridders were defeated by a lone point, and the other instance dates back to his first year on the Bluff, 1927, when the Dukes lost to Ashland, 13 to 12. In the meantime, Duquesne won no fewer than four times by that margin, beating Thiel 8 to 7 in 1927, Haskell and Chicago Loyola 7 to 6 in 1929, and Loyola again 7 to 6 in 1930.

Elmer Layden

The narrow margin of victory takes no credit away from West Virginia Wesleyan. The Bobcats played the better football on the whole and deserved to win. The point after touchdown, like an intercepted pass, is just as much a part of the game as the touchdown itself, and the team that makes it where a rival fails is entitled to all that it brings. Coaches are not stressing this point after touchdown sufficiently. Last Saturday both Carnegie and Wash.-Jeff fell down on it here, four out of five attempts went wrong in the Pitt-Army game, Wisconsin and Nebraska lost their games on misses, and 12 other big teams that made only one touchdown failed to convert.

YOU DON'T HEAR much about sellouts or capacity crowds in football this fall. Reduced prices have not sufficed to offset the depression and pack the country's stadia. More than a few of the large universities may find at the end of the current season that their athletic budgets do not balance.

At that, some of the college athletic chiefs see a bright side to the situation, thinking it may cause the reformers, downward revisionists and over-emphasis howlers to turn their busybody activities to other fields. They say it's only when college football is extremely popular, turning customers away and making a lot of money that they hear from the obstructionists.

IN PICKING OUT the greatest two ends in Michigan history, Fielding H. Yost names Neil Snow, of his early point-a-minute elevens, and Benny Oosterbaan. Yost pronounces Oosterbaan the smartest modern end. He says he never saw Benny take a step that wasn't necessary.

Oosterbaan was great at guessing plays, Yost relates, dropping back sometimes as far as 25 yards to intercept a pass, but never getting crossed up on any of the unorthodox tactics he might try.

IF HOWARD JONES hasn't been playing possum with his Southern California team this fall, hoping to spring a surprise with a sudden show of strength against Stanford in the big annual title on the coast today, Pop Warner may get some long delayed revenge. Jones is one rival coach who has appeared to have Warner stopped. Pop won two close games against Southern California after leaving Pitt to coach at Stanford, but he hasn't tasted victory since 1926. He got a 13-to-13 tie in 1927 and was defeated 10 to 0 in 1928, 7 to 0 in 1929, 41 to 12 in 1930 and 19 to 0 last year. In seven games Warner never has made more than 13 points against the Trojans, and in three of the last four games he has been held scoreless by the Jones defense. This looks as though it may be Pop's year, however, and it won't be surprising if he comes through this afternoon.

Wally Berger

IN BACKING UP Manager Bill McKechnie's statement that there is no truth in the repeated rumors of deals involving Outfielder Wally Berger, President Emil Fuchs, of the Braves, says he is thinking of having a rubber stamp made that will carry a formal denial of Berger trades.

The Boston chiefs are being called on about every half hour to deny a new rumor of a Berger swap. Since the season closed the baseball romancers have traded the slugging Hub gardener to almost every other club in the National League, when as a matter of fact he has not been offered anywhere.

FUCHS ADMITS THAT he and McKechnie have been talking trades for the last two weeks but says Berger did not figure in any of the proposals. The Boston club expects to close a trade by the end of November, but, according to Fuchs, as well as McKechnie, it is almost certain that Berger will not be included in it.

"We realize that Berger will be a great player when he gets settled and becomes a little smarter in his batting," Fuchs said. "I believe the Boston public thinks too highly of Berger's ability and his promise—for he's still only a youngster—to take kindly to any trade."

RELATIONS WERE VERY close between the Brooklyn and Minneapolis clubs last season. The Dodgers obtained George Kelly from the Millers, and during the year turned over to the latter club Catcher Paul Richards and Pitchers Pea Ridge Day and Babe Phelps. Phelps was shipped back, but Day was serviceable until injured, and Richards turned out to be the best catcher in the American Association, with the result that Minneapolis was able to sell him to the Giants for a fancy price. But all this failed to help Max Carey recently in an attempt to buy Outfielder Joe Mowry, on the recommandation of Scout Chic Fraser, for when Max tried to buy the player Owner George Kelly coolly demanded $35,000. That ended the dickering, and Kelly was informed no big league club would pay that much to a minor league club this year for another Al Simmons.

CAREY WOULD ALSO like to make a deal with the Giants to recover Catcher Paul Richards, purchased by New York from Minneapolis. Max probably realizes that he will be in line for criticism in Brooklyn if Richards makes good behind the bat for Bill Terry's club.

For when he had to part with one of his four catchers last spring, Carey decided to drop Richards and keep Al Lopez, Clyde Sukeforth and Val Picinich. Like Outfielder Mowrey, Richards became a great prospect in one season under the handling of Donie Bush.

SINCE TOMMY LOUGHRAN'S defeat at the hands of Stanley Poreda, many boxing men, believing that Loughran is well fixed financially, have expressed the opinion that Tommy ought to hang up his gloves and retire before he suffers the fate of many another washed-up veteran and is punched goofy.

Billy Petrolle

Some of Loughran's friends demur. They say that Tommy's known intelligence convinces them he would not be fighting unless he needed the money, and that anyhow he is too skillful a defensive boxer to be in any grave danger of being hammered into goofiness. They hold that a boxer can travel much farther than a fighter without getting battered up.

DOWN TO TRAINING for his lightweight title match with Tony Canzoneri on November 4, Billy Petrolle reports that the operation on the elbow of his left arm had no ill effects. Petrolle had feared a possible loss of the leverage that enabled him to put great power in his left rips to the body and shots to the head, but says regular exercise has eliminated all pain and stiffness and he hopes to be at his best for the championship bout. Billy admits that his weight-making problem is more difficult at this time of year than it would have been in the summer months with hot weather to help him reduce.

HOOKS SAMPLE TO START FOR TARTANS

serenade of various points of interest.

SAMPLE MAY START

Carnegie prospects of success against the Irish wereb rightened when word was broadcast from Niles, Mich., where the 'varsity squad has been in seclusion since its arrival yesterday, that Co-Capt. Hooks Sample, veteran guard, was likely to start against the Irish. With Sample in there, the Tech defense will be greatly strengthened.

Jesse C. Harper, Notre Dame's athletic director, both predecessor and successor of the great Knute Rockne, announced this morning that the advance sale of tickets indicated a possible turnout of 30,000 fans for the game. If this number is realized, it will be the greatest crowd of the year for the Irish.

Notre Dame remained a prohibitive favorite to down the Tartans and land its eighth victory in 10 starts against the Plaid.

CLEVER FOE WORRIED

Carnegie's noted varied and tricky attack has Notre Dame worried, and justly so. The Irish recall past experiences with Tech teams, and Hunk Anderson, even though he did buy the wrong type of automobile for South Bend, realizes that while his club probably will win today's game, the Pittsburghers will be ever-present scoring threats. Supposing, too, that the Ramblers happen to have a bum day, and that Tech scores first; with the defensive strength of the Plaid what it is, they'll be tough, very tough, hombres to catch. Tech's attack is such that if it gets off to a running start, it's liable to get you jammed up in the traffic.'

The Carnegie backfield situation remains somewhat of a puzzle. The coaches won't be certain until game time just what combination of quarterback and fullback will be used. It looks like Harry McCurdy will start as the signal-caller, although an eleventh-hour shift may see Angie Bevevino in there. Bevevino attended N. D. before he enrolled at Tech and knows plenty about the Irish game.

FULLBACK UNCERTAIN

It will be either Joe Mihm, inexperienced but husky sophomore, or Jerry O'Toole, veteran, at fullback. O'Toole is smart and heady on the defense, but shy on the attack. Mihm is a better blocker and of more value on the offense, but Jerry moves better back of the line than does Big Joe. The chances are O'Toole will start.

Co-Captain George Kavel and Bill Spisak will be in at the halfbacks. Kavel, on the right, is a good blocker and a hard-hitting ball lugger. Spisak has come through in fair manner as a running back, and can go "outside" in good fashion.

Coach Hunk Anderson is expected to start his shock troops. They have had shock troops here at Notre Dame for years and years, some have been more of a shock than others. This year, they tell me that if you'd take the numbers off the boys' backs, you couldn't tell one eleven from the other—up to about the fifth.

A. A. Moguls May Cut Players' Pay

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Club owners of the American Association will hold a special meeting here today to consider slashing players' salaries for 1933 and shortening the playing schedule one week.

Half of the eight club owners, President Thomas J. Hickey said, favor a schedule of 154 games, closing the season September 17. This move may be carried out so the "little world series" between the pennant winner of the American Association and the champions of the International League can be finished before the start of the world series.

Keene Fitzpatrick Quits at Princeton

PRINCETON N. J., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Keene Fitzpatrick, for 42 years an athletic coach and trainer at Yale, Michigan and Princeton and one of the pioneers of intercollegiate sport, has resigned as Princeton track coach and football trainer, effective after the current football season, the Princeton board of athletic control announced last night.

A desire to return to a "less strenuous mode of life" was expressed by Fitzpatrick. He will be 68 years old Christmas Day. Fitzpatrick will continue to live at Princeton. His successor has not been named.

TOMORROW: THE QUEEN OF HEARTS.

BUCKEYES MAY PULL DOPE UPSET

Saturday, while the Buckeyes have been held to a 7-7 tie by Indiana and were beaten by Michigan last Saturday, 14-0.

It will be an aroused Ohio State team that faces a probably too well satisfied Panther. Therein lies danger for the locals. It is the under-rated foe that generally proves most troublesome to defeat. The Ohioans are due for a good game and Pitt for a letdown, and almost anything may happen this afternoon.

MAY USE PASSES AGAIN

Ohio proved vulnerable to a forward passing game as it bowed to Michigan last week, and Pitt, with Heller in there throwing them and Capt. Reider and Skladany, the end, to catch them, is especially proficient in this department of play, as it demonstrated against the Army last year and this. The Panthers may have to take to the air against the heavy visitors.

In addition to Capt. Hinchman, players in the Ohio lineup who will come in for special attention from the fans are Regis Monahan, of Greenfield, tackle; Joe Gailus, of Vandergrift, guard; Mike Vuchinich, fullback, also of Vandergrift, and Oliphant, quarterback, a nephew of Elmer Oliphant, the former Army star.

FAMOUS BAND TO PLAY

Pitt's lineup will be the same as that which started against the Army with the exception that Frank Walton will be at right tackle in place of Bob Hoel, the fine sophomore, who needs a rest as a result of the bruising Army game. George Shotwell again will start at center instead of Joe Tormey, the regular, who was reinjured when injected into the Army game during the latter stages.

A high spot of the afternoon will be the appearance of the famous Ohio State band, one of the finest in the land, which marched and played downtown upon its arrival this morning before heading for the Stadium. Kickoff is scheduled for 2 o'clock, and one of the largest crowds of the season is expected.

Marchy Schwartz, erstwhile Notre Dame star, will scout Pitt today for the Irish, who meet the Panthers here next Saturday. Alec Fox, Pitt captain in 1928, will scout his alma mater for Pennsylvania, where he is assistant to Head Coach Harvey Harman, also a former Pitt nine luminary.

W. & J. DEFEATS XAVIER, 34-0

CINCINNATI, Oct. 22.—The football team of Washington and Jefferson College, of Little Washington, Pa., had no trouble showing its superiority over St. Xavier's team here last night. The President's took things in a smooth manner as they piled up a flock of touchdowns. The score was 34-0.

About 9,000 fans were treated to some clever football as the Red and Black host swept the home players off their feet. The visitors did not start to do their stuff til the second quarter. They were content to warm up in the first period, but in the second section they hung up two touchdowns. Zagray got away to a 52-yard run to score the first touchdown of the game.

Rosso featured the third quarter by skipping over the turf for 64 yards and a touchdown. Xavier made its longest gain in the final quarter when it picked up 45 yards on a forward pass. The lineup:

GENEVA PLAYS BOSTON U.

Geneva College stages a feature football game on its Beaver Falls field this afternoon when it meets Boston University, which it defeated, 7-0, in Boston last fall. The Covenanters, coached by Howard Harpster, former Carnegie Tech star, are having another good season, having been beaten only by Carnegie Tech, one touchdown to none, at the Stadium here.

In other district games today, aside from the Pitt-Ohio State game at the Stadium and the Carnegie Tech-Notre Dame battle at South Bend, Thiel plays at Bethany.

Grove City encounters the undefeated Waynesburg team, victor over Penn State, at Waynesburg; Westminster opposes St. Bonaventure at Olean, N. Y.; Penn State is host to Syracuse at State College; Dickinson plays at Allegheny; the Glenville Teachers are at Slippery Rock Teachers; New River plays the Quantico Marines at Quantico, Va., and Davis and Elkins takes on Albright at Reading, Pa.

The Pitt freshmen play the Penn State yearlings at State College and the Carnegie Tech plebes are at Morgantown, W. Va., for a battle with the West Virginia University freshmen. The lineup:

Gripping tale of the successful career of the new 26-year-old manager of the Washington Senators, who succeeds Walter Johnson in the post.

Trace his progress from his debut with the Pirates at the age of 18, his development with Johnstown, in the Mid-Atlantic League, his return to the big show and his winning of "most valuable player" laurels as the shortstop of the Senators prior to his accession to the manager's position.

This interesting, inspiring success story in six daily installments, by Charles J. Doyle, baseball expert, begins Monday in the

ATHLETICS DROP ED ROMMEL

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Eddie Rommel, knuckle ball pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics, was given his unconditional release yesterday by Connie Mack, manager of the club. Mack said:

"Rommel was a 10-year man, having served with the A's from the start of the 1920 campaign. Therefore, no major league club claiming him on waivers, he was entitled to his unconditional release."

Rommel, who is about 35 years old, is the last of the old guard of Athletic players to go. Recently Connie Mack announced he would not trade or sell any ball player to any other club in the major leagues if the player is to remain in the majors. His statement did not cover "10-year" players entitled to their unconditional release.

TEMPLE WHIPS DENVER

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Scoring once in each of the first two quarters, Temple University downed a fighting University of Denver football team, 14 to 0, tonight before about 10,000 fans in Temple Stadium.

MARSHALL BEATEN

DAYTON, O., Oct. 22.—Marshall College, of Huntington, W. Va., suffered its first defeat of the season here last night, bowing to Dayton, 13-7.

STATE BATTLES SYRACUSE

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 22.—The Nittany Lions of Penn State wound up a week's drill without going through a single scrimmage in a lengthy practice yesterday. Syracuse, the rival for the home-coming game today, stopped over night in Williamsport and did not come to the campus until this morning.

According to word from Williamsport, Tom Lombardi, ailing Orange captain, will not start at his tackle position. Coach Vic Hanson has switched his lineup around frequently all week and the captain has been missing from the picture.

Cronin, Suhr Play In Benefit Game

OAKLAND, Cal., Oct. 22.—(INS.)—Led by Joe Cronin, manager of the Washington Americans, an array of major league stars will take the field at the Oaks' park here tomorrow in a charity game between major and minor all-star teams.

Among the big-leaguers will be Gussie Suhr, Mark Koenig, Jimmie Reese, and Larry Bettencourt.

DETROIT DOWNS W. VA., 26-13

DETROIT, Oct. 22.—The Mountaineers of West Virginia University made a nervy fight against the fast University of Detroit eleven last night, but in the end the invaders had to bow to defeat. The score was 26-13.

The home team had all the better of the argument in the first two quarters. They scored a touchdown in each of the first two early periods, while West Virginia could not get the ball over the enemy boundary line.

The last two quarters were filled with snappy action. The Mountaineers found a belated punch and throughout the second half stayed in the pace of the Detroit team.

West Virginia sustained a bit of ill luck at the outset of the contest. Detroit kicked off to Parriott, who fumbled, and the home guards recovered the ball on the foe's 27-yard line. The Mountaineers made a fine stand in the crisis, forcing a kick, the punt going out of bounds on the West Virginia three-yard line. The visitors punted and then held the enemy again. Eventually a pass from Nott to Rajkovich, netted a touchdown. Another West Virginia fumble in the second period led to a Detroit touchdown.

Detroit was first to score in the third quarter, but Parriott recorded a touchdown for his team on a fine pass from Allen. Thomas' dash of 26 yards was the climax to a touchdown made by the invaders in the last period. Storrie scored for Detroit in this period. The lineup:

WEST VIRGINIA WESLEYAN DEFEATS DUQUESNE, 7-6

83-YARD RUN BY BEVERIDGE IS FEATURE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Elmer Layden's fighting Dukes from the Bluff today were willing to admit that the gridders of West Virginia Wesleyan were right up around the upper class in their rating. The fair observation was the result of a 7-6 victory the Bobcats won over the Duquesne team last night under the arc lights of Forbes Field. Approximately 6,000 fans sat through the brisk October spectacle as the evenly matched clubs fought it out in their near-draw. The triumph of the West Virginians was a repeater; the Bobcats hung a 12-0 setback on the home guards on the same sport field last fall.

The Dukes' defeat in their last night game of the season tended to produce a rather peculiar triangle. The vanquished gridders had the satisfaction of defeating West Virginia University, which team, in turn, trimmed the victors of last night.

Although the two touchdowns recorded in the furious battle were tinged with luck, it seems to be the better part of sportsmanship to write that the invaders deserved to cop the battle. This conclusion is reached when one considers the remarkable line play of the visitors in many crises. The Duquesne backfield perhaps was superior to the enemy setup, but Coach Ross' line stood out in radiant hue. Time and again the Bobcat tackles, guards and center broke through to smear Duke ball toters for a loss and the terminal sprinters measured up to the high standard set by the other resistance men.

SCORES MADE EARLY

All the scoring developed in the first quarter, the Bluffites being the first to get some production. The play of the opposing lines was so good that the punting game cropped out quickly. The battle had not progressed far when Guard DeGarbo, of the Dukes, broke through to smear one of Hall's kicks. Tackle Niccoai, in the footsteps of his mate, picked up the ball near the 12-yard line and joyfully bounded over for a touchdown. Red Sullivan's kick for the point was wide.

The Dukes appeared to be in a mood to roll up a sizeable score after making their marker. They quickly carried the ball well into the enemy's territory, but when real danger threatened the Bobcat line showed its real class. Failing to gain on straight football, the Dukes tried a lateral pass near the foe's 15-yard stripe. The idea was good, but the execution flivvered. As Strutt slid sidewise to take the lateral, Fullback Beveridge pushed between the two Dukes and, snatching the ball from a low posture, he straightened up and outstepped the field on a run of 83 yards for a touchdown. The invaders were happy as Art Bechtel booted the ball over the uprights for the extra point. From that moment to the finish it was anybody's fight.

BOBCAT STAR HURT

Howard Bachtel suffered a torn ligament in his neck in the second quarter. The quarterback had to be carried to the dressing room, where later physicians said his injuries were not serious.

The clever punting duel between Red Sullivan and Joe Hall was a distinctive feature of the first quarter. The line play was so exacting the burden was placed on the punters and the pair of kickers made the issue a pretty draw. This sort of stuff continued without a break until DeCarbo blocked a kick on the 12-yard line and Niccoai grabbed up the bounding ball and hustled across the line without being molested. Sullivan's try for the point was wide of its mark.

LATERAL PASS COSTLY

The Dukes went to work with a vengeance after making their touchdown. They took the ball up the field after an exchange of punts, but when they reached the 20-yard line, the Wesleyan line stiffened again. It was at this point that DeLuca and Strutt tried a lateral pass. Beveridge gauged the play prettily and after nailing the ball the fleet fullback outstripped the field to the Duke's goal line. Art Bachtel put his team in front with a placement kick.

The Dukes outplayed the invaders in the remaining minutes of the half, but the whistle blew before they could become dangerous.

The line play in the third period was just as snappy and the two punters again went into a duel of kicking. The invading team drew a 15-yard penalty and the play became fierce. Hull's long punt to DeCosta was fumbled as the safety player was tackled. White recovered the ball and the visitors went to work on the Dukes' 30-yard line.

LONG PASSES FAIL

Halfback Jim McDonald intercepted a Wesleyan pass at a critical stage and the Dukes put the ball in play on their own 10-yard line. McDonald's 20-yard dash near the close of the third period gave the Dukes new zip. Wesleyan drew a penalty on a forward pass as the period ended, the Dukes having the ball in midfield.

The Dukes' backfield put through a first down early in the fourth period. They had the ball well within the enemy territory at this stage. A forward pass clicked for six yards, but Zanninelli fumbled on the next play and Wesleyan recovered the ball. The visitors punted into the Dukes' territory and the home team tried a long forward pass that failed. Hall intercepted a forward pass and put the ball in play on the Dukes' 30-yard line.

The Dukes got the ball again on a punt, but their series of long passes failed to click. The lineup:

Syracuse May Lose Lombardi for Year

SYRACUSE, Oct. 22.—(INS.)—Tom Lombardi, Syracuse University's football captain, may not play again this year.

This was revealed when Lombardi was ordered by a doctor to take two weeks of rest, because his blood pressure was below normal.

The doctor reported, after an examination, that the giant tackle should have no exercise of any kind for at least two weeks. Lombardi also is captain of the varsity crew.

ROSS DEFEATS BATTALINO

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Barney Ross, Chicago youngster, bounding along to a match for the lightweight championship, skidded over Bat Battalino, battle-scarred warrior from Hartford, Conn., in a blistering 10-round battle in the Chicago Stadium last night.

Ross won nine of 10 rounds, according to the unanimous vote of the two judges and Referee Tommy Thomas, by masterful boxing. He was too clever for the former featherweight champion.

Battalino, while taking a two-handed shellacking, never took a step backward.

Ross won because he possessed a sharpshooting left hand which he popped into Battalino's face, always finding an opening in Battalino's defense.

The battle attracted a crowd of 11,349 with receipts of $21,463. Battalino scaled 135½ with Ross tipping the beam at 135.

Art Lasky, Minneapolis heavyweight, scored a technical knockout over Hal Murphy, of Springfield, Ill., in the fourth round of their scheduled six-rounder.

Charles Retzlaff, of Duluth, Minn., failed to knock out Jack Roper, of New Orleans, in their eight-rounder, although he exploded all the dynamite he possessed.

Paul Dazzo, Chicago featherweight, won an unpopular verdict over Jack Sharkey, of St. Paul, in six rounds.

CAPT. HINCHMAN AND BILL, HIS DAD

Lew Hinchman, captain of the Ohio State Buckeyes against the Pitt Panthers in their battle at the Stadium this afternoon, is a son of Bill Hinchman, Pirate scout and former player. A brother, Bill Hinchman, Jr., preceded Lew as a football star at Ohio State. These are Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph pictures.

Heller, of Pitt, Wins All-America Rating

By CHRISTY WALSH

Member All-America Board of Football. (Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

The following 10 players have been given all-America rating by reason of outstanding performance in their respective games played last week. Each player mentioned will receive a CARD of MERIT, issued by the All-America Board of Football.

HELLER—Pittsburgh. Here is one of the greatest scoring threats in football today. He started the fireworks against Army with a glorious 55-yard sweep for a touchdown. He followed this with a pass, half the distance of the field, and Pitt scored again. He was in there going places from start to finish, behind a wall of magnificent interference.

ROBINSON—Minnesota. His spectacular pass-grabbing against Nebraska gave a close victory to Minnesota. "For the third straight year," says Charley Johnson, of the Minneapolis Star, "Robinson is defensively superb and I consider him the best pass receiver since Bert Baston."

OLSON—Northwestern. Gaining 30 per cent of the entire yardage of his team against Illinois, Olson carried the ball 26 times for an average of four yards. Olson's tremendous punting and pounding of the line made him the outstanding performer in the Northwestern-Illinois game last Saturday.

ALSAUGH—Denver University. His desperate playing against an odds-on favorite rated this shifty tackle all-America. Colorado Aggies were considered two touchdowns better, but Denver held them to a tie, and Alsaugh was the chief reason. This is on authority of Pops Parsons, of the Denver Post, one-time star at Iowa.

SANDER—Washington State. Here is a triple-threat man whose passing, kicking and running combined to humble California's Golden Bears last Saturday, and who, according to Ed Hughes, of the San Francisco Chronicle is the greatest football stylist on the Pacific Coast today.

NEWMAN—Michigan. With two touchdown passes thrown as true as a die, this phenomenal quarterback defeated the old rival, Ohio State, almost single-handed. Newman is a fine runner and a quick-thinking pilot. He should rate all-America with special mention, because he has shown the courage to come back to glory after a very poor season last year.

JORGENSEN—St. Mary's, Calif. Mitt Phelps, Oakland Tribune, writes: "Recommend this fine tackle for all-America rating because of great showing last Saturday, when he recovered a fumbled punt on nine-yard line, blocked another punt for safety, place-kicked two points after touchdowns and piled up stubborn offense all afternoon."

LYONS—Indiana. Eddie Ash, of the Indianapolis Times, enthuses as follows about this remarkable Negro player: "In the Iowa game no other player on the field was more important than Lyons. He place-kicked for three points and scored another after touchdown. He starred on the receiving end of passes, and his uncanny leaping will confound any kind of pass defense."

SUMMERFELT—West Point. This fighting captain spent part of his time in the Army line and the rest in the Pittsburgh backfield. Play after play, he was in there smashing interference, rushing the kicker and hauling down the Pittsburgh ball-carrier—sometimes for a loss. Summerfelt's line play was devastating to the enemy and inspiring to his teammates.

GAILUS—Ohio State. Bud Shaver, of the Detroit Times, rates Gailus as the best lineman in the Big Ten Conference so far this year. He is fast, aggressive and has plenty of fighting spirit. Michigan was unable to gain through his side of the line, and, in Shaver's opinion, the Buckeye guard was the best player on the field.

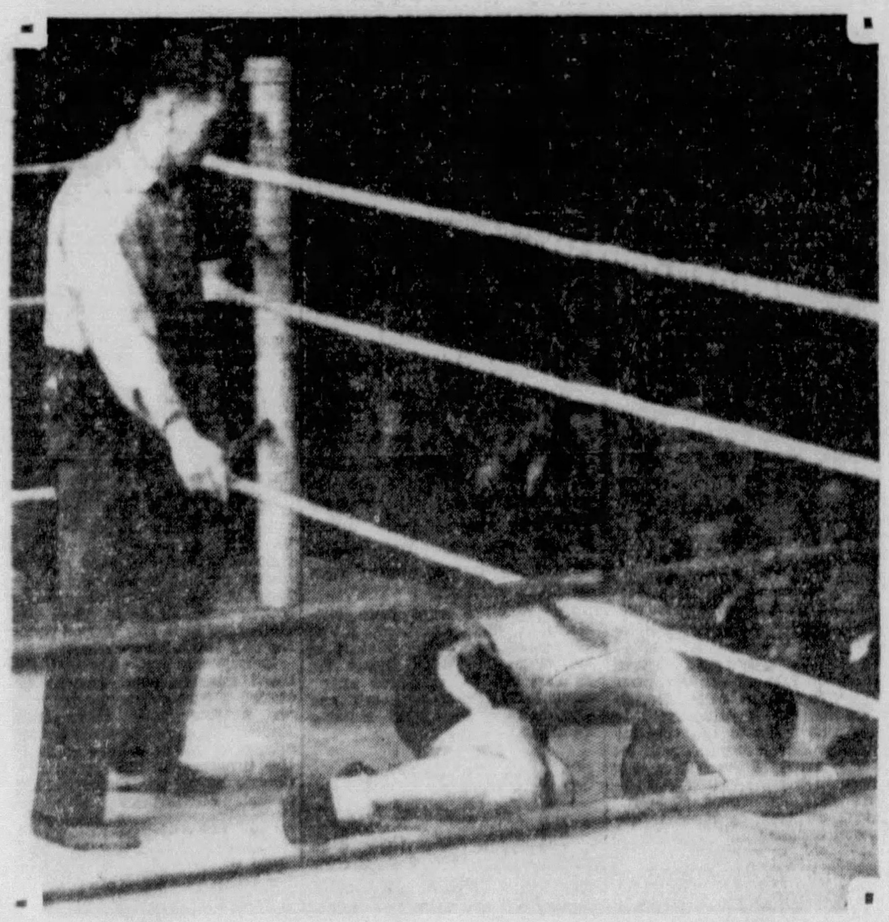
FAIR OR FOUL? A KNOCKOUT



REFEREE RED ROBINSON COUNTING OUT GEORGE PANKA AT ARENA

A right to the body dropped Panka, Homestead heavyweight, for the full count in the eighth round of his bout with Charley Belanger, of Canada, at the Arena, last night. Some ringsiders claimed the blow was low. The referee said it was fair and counted out the local man, as shown above in Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph exclusive picture.

KAYOS FEATURE AVALON BOUTS

Two knockouts marked the amateur boxing show staged last night in Avalon for the Emergency Relief Association of that borough. The summary:

112-pound class—Frank Schrider defeated Ray Hatton, 3 rounds.
118-pound class—Bob Kelly defeated Al Martizo, 3 rounds.
126-pound class—S. Saunders knocked out G. Liggins, 3 rounds.
135-pound class—Al. Harge defeated Jimmy Campbell, 3 rounds.
118-pound class—Lee Sweeney defeated Gene Feir, 3 rounds.
135-pound class—Romeo Calderella defeated Walter Beatty, 3 rounds.
180-pound class—Steve Levindowski won a technical knockout over Cliff Armstrong, 2 rounds.

Pitcher in Auto Crash Is Jailed

HARRISBURG, Oct. 22.—(INS.)—Thomas (Lefty) George, 41, veteran pitcher of the York Baseball Club, was held in jail today while he sought $500 bail for release on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated.

Fight Results

At Motor Square Garden—Charley Belanger knocked out George Panka, 8 rounds; Joey Speigel and Billy Holt drew (referee's decision), 8 rounds; Lloyd Clements knocked out Tony Rabino, 3 rounds; Ray Winbush defeated Tony Constantini, 6 rounds.

At Chicago—Barney Ross defeated Bat Battalino, 10 rounds; Art Lasky knocked out Hal Murphy, 4 rounds; Charley Retzlaff defeated Jack Roper, 8 rounds; Paul Dazzo defeated Jack Sharkey, 6 rounds; Johnny Phagan defeated Harvey Carothers, 4 rounds.

At Charlotte, N. C.—Johnny Roberts knocked out Jimmy Sullivan, 9 rounds.

At Berlin, Germany—Otto Von Porat knocked out Hans Mueller, 6 rounds.

At San Diego, Cal.—Eddie Murdock defeated Milford (Swede) Berglund, 10 rounds.

At Hollywood—Tom Patrick defeated James J. Braddock, 10 rounds.

At San Francisco—LeRoy Haynes defeated Arthur DeKuh, 10 rounds; Gabriel Lavayssee won by technical knockout over Big Boy Rawson, 6 rounds.

At Stevens Point, Wis.—Ernie Evans defeated Walter Pickard, 8 rounds.

GRID CARD HAS CRUCIAL TILTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Another brilliant array of football battles today promised to shed a little more light on the nation's sectional championship races, particularly in the Far West, Mid-West and East.

At Palo Alto, Stanford and Southern California were locked in a struggle that, in all probability, carried with it the Pacific Coast Conference championship. A crowd of close to 80,000 was expected for this duel of traditional rivals, with Stanford favored to win for the first time since 1926.

Purdue, co-favorite with Michigan for the Big Ten title, bumped into its biggest test of the Conference season in the clash with Northwestern's aroused Wildcats at Evanston. Michigan anticipated less trouble from Bob Zuppke's Illinois outfit.

Headlining the Eastern program from a strictly championship standpoint, was the fray between Colgate and New York University, both undefeated and untied, in the Yankee Stadium, but there were other important games involving the title hopes of Pittsburgh, Harvard, Fordham and Army.

Intersectional duels between Pitt and Ohio State, Michigan State and Fordham, Carnegie Tech and Notre Dame and Boston College and Marquette added spice to the Eastern and Mid-western slates.

Army deployed against Yale, Harvard played Dartmouth, and Princeton took on Navy in big Eastern games.

TEACHERS BEAT ADRIAN

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Launching an offense that crushed Adrian College's forwards at West Liberty Teachers scored a 27-0 gridiron win over their Michigan visitors last night. Adrian's air heaves were twice intercepted by the Teachers, who converted the passes into touchdowns.

GRIDDER CONSTABLE

Joe Johnson, South Carolina tackle, spent the summer working as a constable in place of his father, who was ill.

PANKA KAYOED BY BELANGER IN EIGHTH

A right-hand blow to the body spilled George Panka, Homestead heavyweight, for the full count as the echo of the gong for the start of the eighth round died away in his scheduled 10-round main bout with Charley Belanger, of Canada, in the Arena, on the North Side, last night.

Many ringside spectators argued the finishing punch was low, while others contended it was fair. From the elevated press stand it appeared to land in the pit of the stomach. The referee, Red Robinson, did not hesitate, but began his count at once, as Panka writhed about on the floor, holding his groin, and partly pulled himself under the lower rope near Belanger's corner. The time of the round, including the count, was given as 18 seconds, but it did not appear to be that long, for Panka rushed out of his corner at the bell, diagonally across the ring, squarely into the blow, the only one of the round.

BELANGER EASY WINNER

It was Belanger's fight all of the way, and Panka assimilated a good punching before it was all over. Charley, although outweighed nine pounds, at 182¼, had too much experience and was too accurate a hitter for George. He had no trouble scoring with either hand as Panka shifted his style from round to round in an effort to get into the running. George started to make a rushing fight of it, but was tamed down with chopping rights to the jaw before the first session ended. Then he alternated between jabbing and weaving and hooking. No matter what he tried, Belanger was able to beat him to the punch and had more snap behind his blows than George was able to muster, with the result that he had Panka hurt and holding several times, especially from body punches, while he himself never was in trouble. He hammered George until the tips of the latter's gloves reached the floor in the seventh round, but there was no count.

Belanger impressed as a good journeyman heavyweight who will beat a lot of opponents. Panka gave his all, trying all of the time, but simply wasn't good enough.

SPEIGAL, HOLT DRAW

Joey Speigal, of Uniontown, and Billy Holt, of Homewood, drew in the eight-round semi-final, a monotonous, close-range affair until the last few rounds, when Speigal stepped out and really took the lead, but the judges disagreed and Referee Joe Zivic's vote ruled it a dead heat. Judge McLaughlin also voted a draw, while Judge Frank Brown found for Speigal. Joey fought the last four rounds with a bad left hand. They are welterweights.

Lloyd Clements, Jeannette light-heavyweight, knocked out Tony Rabino, of Lisbon, O., in the third round of the second bout, the most interesting on the card. Lloyd was outboxed by the faster moving Rabino in the first round, but dropped his man for nine with a right to the jaw early in the second and went down himself for one as he ran into a left hook trying to finish the thing. Rabino was down twice for the full count in the fourth, the referee giving him the benefit of the doubt as he got up the first time. Tony made a great show of trying to beat the count again the second time, and of wanting to continue the fight, but he could have got up before 10 either time if he really had wanted to carry on, instead of merely making a grandstand gesture.

Can't Shave

AMADEO MASSA

Because he bet on Army against Pitt last week, Massa can't shave for three weeks unless he wins his bet on Ohio State against Pitt today. If he loses, he goes shaveless for six weeks, or forfeits $5 per shave. If Albert Auen, his betting partner, loses on Pitt today, they're all even and Massa shaves at once. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

Between Rounds

Gus Camp, manager of Davy Grove, is balking over the terms offered his man to box Pee Wee Jarrell in the semi-final to the Tony Herrera-Battling Gizzo fight at Motor Square Garden, Monday night, and the match may be off.

Nat Litfin, bantamweight, of the Hill, is back in training after having rested an injured eye.

Attempts to rematch Ted Yarosz and Eddie (Kid) Wolfe at the Garden here for a week from next Monday having failed, it is likely that Yarosz will box Ray Kiser at New Orleans that night and go against Wolfe there in a 15-rounder a week later.

Motor Square Garden is working on a Jimmy Thomas-Eugene Huat match for November 7.

Charley Baxter, local lightweight, returns to Louisville, where he is a good card to box Cecil Payne one week from Monday night. HARRY KECK.

GRINS From the GRID

By O. W. (Red) Severence
Noted Southern Football Official.

NO. 11.

Coach Ray Morrison's Southern Methodists were leading, 40 to 1, in the annual game with Arkansas in 1931 and almost all of the Texas players were having a Roman holiday piling up the score on their weaker opponents.

Almost all—for Red Jackson, big Irish tackle, was having a great deal of difficulty with the Arkansas guard playing against him.

Scrapping for every inch, the guard was giving Red the fight of his life.

Finally, as the teams lined up for another play, Red asked, in a disgusted tone:

"Say, what's the idea of playing so hard? We already have you beaten so bad you haven't a chance to win."

The guard replied:

"I know it, but I'm trying to make the Arkansas first team."

Red's comeback:

"Well, Buddy, I'm trying to make the S. M. U. first team, too, so ease up a bit and maybe Both of us can make the grade."

POP SURPRISED AT POWER OF HIS CARDS

WARNER'S SELECTIONS

U. S. C. Stanford a toss-up.
Washington over California.
Oregon over Idaho.
U. S. C. L. A. over California Tech.
Montana over Montana State.

By GLENN S. (POP) WARNER
Member All-America Board of Football.
(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

With the football season now nearly at the half-way mark, the situation and standing of the various football teams in the Far West present quite a different picture from what was supposed by the depesters at the beginning of the season.

Pop Warner

At that time Southern California and St. Mary's were heralded as having by far the best prospects of any of the Coast teams. This was because of the wealth of material at those institutions and their acknowledged high-class coaching staffs. The University of California, at Los Angeles, and Stanford were figured to place either in the lower or near the bottom of the first division. None of the other members of the Conference were figured to place better than third to the Trojans and the Bears.

With the season just about half over, Southern California, University of California at Los Angeles and Stanford are the only Far West teams of any importance that have not been beaten or tied, and the only other conference team that remains undefeated, although once tied, is the University of Washington.

The biggest surprises I would say have been the rather poor showing of California and Stanford's unexpectedly good record to date.

INJURIES HURT BEARS

These changes in the situation at the half-way mark only serve to emphasize the hazards and the obstacles in the path of every football team and how much luck—good or bad—figures in the development of a team. California's optimism at the start of the season was amply justified because of an unexpectedly good record last year when Coach Ingram was a new man on the job and because of more and better material with which to build a team this year.

From the very start of the season California has been very severely handicapped by injuries to key men. Shaldach, a triple-threat man of great ability, was expectd to be a big shot of the California team just as Moffatt was so expected to be at Stanford last fall, but he was put out of commission early in the season, and if California's shining star fails to round into shape his injury is likely to result disastrously for the Bears, just as the loss of Moffatt ruined Stanford's prospects a year ago. If Shaldach gets back into condition California is likely to be as good as any team on the Coast.

Southern California, although unbeaten and untied, has not looked as impressive as have its teams of the past three years. The Trojan line has proved to be a stone wall, but the backfield has not shown itself the equal of the Shaver, Musick, Pinckert, Mallory combination of last year. That was a backfield equal to the best ever to play on any team, not excepting the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame.

WASHINGTON STRONG

Jimmy Phelan has a great team at Washington which has not yet reached its peak and which is very likely to be a winner in any game on the Huskies' schedule.

Stanford has been as much of a surprise to me as to everyone else. One reason for the Indians' unexpectedly good record has been the good fortune of not having many injuries. This has enabled the coaches to make steady progress with no changes made necessary by injuries to key men.

U. C. L. A., the youngest member of the Conference, looms as one of the best teams on the Pacific Coast, since defeating Oregon last Saturday. Bill Spaulding has labored faithfully for several years and has made gradual progress every year.

TWO AA GAMES HEAD SCHOOL GRID CARD

By JULIUS LEVIN

Greensburg and Jeannette, each boasting one victory in the class AA High School Football Conference, will have a chance to force New Castle High in a three-way deadlock for first place by scoring victories in league encounters this afternoon.

New Castle, showing the way to all conference rivals with victories over Charleroi and Washington, is not scheduled for league competition this week, having played Ellwood City at home last night.

GREENSBURG AT CLAIRTON

Greensburg, coached by Earl Loucks, will have an opportunity to make it two straight by defeating Clairton at Clairton, while Jeannette has Wilkinsburg for an AA opponent at Wilkinsburg.

Today's scholastic program offers a wide selection of attractive games. Three Pittsburgh schools go out of town for contests. South High is the opponent of McKeesport at McKeesport, Schenley, champion of Section I of the City League, appears at Steubenville, and Central Catholic High plays St. Veronica's in Ambridge.

CLASS A HEADLINER

The Western Pennsylvania schedule is headed by the Swissvale-Duquesne fracas at Swissvale. Both teams are in the running for the class A title and must win today to stay in the fight.

East Huntingdon plays at Norwin, California at Munhall, Turtle Creek Union at Latrobe, Braddock at Derry Township, Butler at New Brighton, Tarentum at Ford City, Beaver Falls at Rochester, Stowe Township at Hurst, Zelienople at Beaver, Freedom at Monaca, Apollo at Leechburg, Scottdale at Connellsville, Etna at Springdale, Trafford at East McKeesport and Youngwood at Mt. Pleasant in other important W. P. I. A. L. duels.

EASY FOR WESTINGHOUSE

Westinghouse High School romped to a victory over the outclassed Fifth Avenue team yesterday on the Schenley Field in a City League game. The score was 41-0. Dalfonso was the best ball carrier for the triumphant eleven.

Taylor Allderdice High gave Peabody quite a battle, but the latter club was able to chisel out a 21-0 success.

Langley High defeated Allegheny in an exciting contest. A pass, Ross to Hardiste, netted 40 yards and a touchdown.

Donora High scored a 6-4 victory over Charleroi at the latter place, almost 6,000 fans watching the hard struggle of the fast elevens. New Castle High trimmed Ellwood City, 42-0; Homestead defeated Scott, 13-6; Mt. Lebanon downed Carrick, 20-7; Dormont subdued Avalon, 14-2; McKees Rocks and Carnegie staged a scoreless tie; Vandergrift defeated Kittanning, 19-0; East Liverpool won over Midland, 14-6; Duke Preps nosed out St. Joseph High, 7-0; St. Peter's downed St. Justin 19-6, and Edgewood swamped Aspinwall, 26-0, in other important games.

SALEM COLLEGE WINS

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Salem College defeated Morris Harvey in football here yesterday, 15 to 6. Salem scored touchdowns in the second and fourth periods and a safety in the third.

Chinese Flock to Temple When Killer Continues Reign of Terror

CHAPTER IX.

Bob Gattle, manager of the Kuali Plantations, Ltd., visits Singapore about once a week. On his next trip in, he looked me up and earnestly sought my advice on the best means of hunting down the animal that was terrifying the whole region in which his company operated.

Gattle wanted me to return to the rubber estate with him the following day to see if I couldn't figure out an effective way of battling this striped demon. I was unable to accompany him, however, as I was scheduled to leave for Siam the following day and couldn't possibly postpone my mission.

But I went on to say that the advice I would give nim if I visited Kuali and looked over the scene of the animal's depredations probably wouldn't differ a bit from what I ventured to suggest as we sat there at the hotel that day.

"I hope there are no more killings," I said, "but if there should be one, you'll have to let the body stay where the tiger left it if you expect to shoot the villain." (A tiger on killing his victim usually eats his fill, repairs to his lair to sleep it off and returns later to the scene of his killing to gorge himself all over again.)

DOESN'T LIKE IDEA

Gattle shook his head. "That's out," he said.

"I know what you're going to tell me," I replied. "It's against the law."

"Exactly so," said Gattle.

"Then you'll have to break the law," I insisted. "There are times when it's got to be done."

"I'd like to," said Gattle, "but it would raise the very devil. You know how superstitious these Chinese are. I'd never get another day's work out of them if they caught me using a human body as bait."

All the heavy work at Kuali—as in other parts of the Straits country—is done by Straits-born Chinese. If a planter wants to clear off a thousand acres of jungle these are the men he selects for this strenuous assignment. Lighter and more skillful work, like the tapping of rubber trees, is done by the Tamils. The Malays participate very slightly in any of these activities. They live among themselves in settlements of their own where most of them confine their ambitions to raising enough food to provide for their own needs and those of their dependents. Some of them trade in jungle produce, others specialize in fishing, trapping or rattan-gathering, and around the plantations they act as caboons or gardeners.

REJECTS ADVICE

Gattle went on to remind me of the tremendous respect that the Chinese have for the dead. He could not afford to tamper with this feeling. It would mean antagonizing the men who did all the back-breaking work on his rubber plantation, and that would slow up production and bring down on him the wrath of the owners.

"So you'd better give me some constructive advice, Buck," he said solemnly.

"No," I said. "You won't take constructive advice. Twelve-killings is getting pretty close to a world's record, Bob. You're dealing with an animal that's blessed—or cursed—with the very maximum of brains and cunning. I've told you how you've got to deal with him and you're too stubborn to take my advice. But I don't believe that you'll ever catch your killer till you follow it."

We argued the thing back and forth for an hour or more, but I couldn't budge him. Finally we adjourned to the lobby, where we were joined by one of the town pests, the same amateur hunter who had suggested organizing an armored car expedition. He was feeling a bit humorous for a change, I suppose, because his latest idea was that I should "go out to Gattle's place and drag the tiger back by the tail."

I was in no mood for a kidding match, so I just kept silent and let him ramble on. "You're in the business of collecting live animals, aren't you?" he asked. "Well, Bob Gattle will let you keep the tiger if you capture it. Think of the money you could make exhibiting the world's greatest man-killer."

SUPERSTITIOUS PEOPLE

I shrugged my shoulders and managed somehow to get away from him. Gattle and I went on to the hotel entrance, where I bade him goodbye, after promising that I would visit his plantation on my return from Siam.

"We actually might try trapping the animal," I suggested. "There's an outside chance that it would work. But you'll have to get over your stubborn idea about the bait. This killer is fussy, and he won't be interested in goats or other small animals. He wants human flesh."

An interesting fact about the Kuali killer was that not one of Gattle's workers was among the 12 fatalities so far. While the animal's tracks had been discovered several times in various parts of Gattle's estate, all of the killings had taken place in adjoining or adjacent territory.

This was attributed by the superstitious natives to the presence on the estate of a crude Chinese temple. This place of worship was erected by the early Chinese immigrants who went into that section of Johore to start clearing out jungle for the planting of rubber when tigers were even a greater menace than they are today. These pioneer workmen in what was to become one of the world's richest rubber districts wanted an altar where they could go to implore their Joss God to protect them from the ever-present striped terror, and the temple was built in the center of the heavy jungle then in the process of being cleared. It still stands—now surrounded by cultivated rubber—as a monument to the fears and superstitions of the early settlers from the Celestial Empire. Owing to the fact that it was erected solely because of fear of tigers, and originally used exclusively to beseech the gods for protection against these marauders, it has always been known as Tiger Temple. It has a remarkable reputation to this very day among Malays and Tamils, in addition to the Chinese who conceived it, for living up to its purpose.

FLOCK TO TEMPLE

Tiger Temple is a square building made of hand-hewn jungle planks, with a high gable roof thatched with rice straw. The structure has no floor, but to compensate for this lack it stands on a slight elevation in the ground which makes easy drainage possible when it rains.

The temple consists of one big room, in the center of which stands a Chinese hand-carved table with a receptacle for burning joss sticks. Against the wall there is a wooden Chinese altar, studded with porcelain figures representing various gods. Here are the perpetually burning candles, their flickering light giving the worshipper a foretaste of the eternal light that shall be his in the hereafter.

The temple is presided over by an aged Chinese priest, who on account of his garb seems more like a wrestler than a holy man. Naked from the waist up, he looks as if ready to take on all comers, catch-as-catch-can. This priest has officiated at the temple for more years than anyone can remember, maintaining the establishment with the money he collects at the altar for the joss sticks and the paper prayers that the worshippers burn as part of the observance of the religion.

The prevailing belief around Kuali is that any Chinaman or other local resident who regularly burns joss at this altar—and who in so doing displays the proper fervor toward the gods—is immune from attack by tigers.

As the depredations of the Killer grew worse, the receipts at the Tiger Temple grew greater and greater, until the old priest was doing a land-office business, and had to hire a servant to assist him in his sales of joss sticks and prayer papers.

NOTICE is hereby given that the following ordinance was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on October 10, 1932, pursuant to the provisions of the several acts of Assembly, authorizing said City, without petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 1501

AN ORDINANCE—Vacating a portion of Boggs avenue in the Nineteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Warrington avenue west to a point 122.53 feet westwardly therefrom.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That a portion of Boggs avenue in the Nineteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Warrington avenue west to a point 122.53 feet westwardly therefrom, be and the same is hereby vacated according to the hereinafter description thereof, to wit:—

BEGINNING at the intersection of the westerly line of Warrington avenue west (formerly Washington avenue south), as located by ordinance No. 105, approved June 26, 1906, and the southerly line of Boggs avenue as opened by ordinance No. 202, approved April 1, 1884, thence extending along the southerly line of Boggs avenue as so opened north 78 degrees 13 minutes 20 seconds west 122.53 feet to a point; thence north 8 degrees 13 minutes 40 seconds west 10.64 feet to a point; thence south 78 degrees 13 minutes 20 seconds east 128.62 feet, parallel to and at a perpendicular distance of 10 feet north of the above mentioned southerly line of Boggs avenue, to the westerly line of Warrington avenue west as located by ordinance No. 105, approved June 26, 1906; thence along the westerly line of Warrington avenue west as so located south 14 degrees 21 minutes 40 seconds west 10.01 feet to the place of beginning.

SECTION 2. This action is made subject to the city sewers now constructed in, under and across the portion of the said vacated street, and the City of Pittsburgh reserves the right and privilege to maintain, repair, construct and re-construct the said sewers or other public sewers in, under and across the said portion of the vacated street.

SECTION 3. That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

NOTICE is hereby given that the following ordinance was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on October 10, 1932, pursuant to the provisions of the several acts of Assembly, authorizing said city, without petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 1502.

Simple Home Frock

Pattern 2257

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

Since tucks are in vogue, and so many, many women love them, we've sketched one of the simplest, yet most attractive of home frocks that achieves most of its popularity through tucked details. The revers may be tiny, but the pockets are large and handy. And again, we recommend a gay cotton print.

Pattern 2257 may be ordered only in sizes 16 to 20 and 34 to 46. Size 16 requires 2¾ yards of 36-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with this pattern.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

The choice of a smart, sensible and economical fall and winter wardrobe becomes very simple with the aid of THE NEW ANNE ADAMS PATTERN CATALOG. This beautiful book contains 32 pages of select Anne Adams models for every FALL and WINTER need—house, street, afternoon, formal frocks and lingerie for adults; pages of lovely models for juniors and kiddies; special styles for the larger figure, and many delightful suggestions for Christmas sewing. SEND FOR YOUR COPY. PRICE OF CATALOG, 15 CENTS. CATALOG AND PATTERN TOGETHER, 25 CENTS. Address all mail orders to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

2.—Write clearly NUMBERS of patterns and SIZE wanted.
3.—Write or print your NAME and ADDRESS plainly.
4.—If you want SUN-TELEGRAPH Style Book send 10c extra.
5.—Address your request to the

VOTE TO GATHER STEEL DATA

The American Institute of Steel Construction voted to take over the gathering of statistics on steel fabricating heretofore financed by the United States Bureau of Census, late yesterday at the closing session of the institute convention in Hotel Schenley.

C. G. Conley, of the Mt. Vernon Bridge Company, Mt. Vernon, O., was elected president and other officers were re-elected. J. M. Hughen, of Houston, Tex., was newly named to the board of directors. Chicago was selected for the 1933 convention.

Use of steel floors in industry and in homes was discussed. Among the speakers were Dr. J. H. Young, vice president of the H. H. Robertson Company, and R. A. Marble, of the Carnegie Steel Company, both of Pittsburgh.

'Y' Membership Drive Passes Goal

The city-wide campaign for 1,850 members by the Young Men's Christian Association has gone over the top, reports received last night revealed. For 10 days scores of workers under the supervision of Holgar Johnson, chairman, have been seeking new members for Downtown, Allegheny, Hilltop and the Center Avenue branches.

Reports last night showed a total of 1972 acquisitions, 122 more than the city-wide quota. Downtown passed its goal of 800, getting 825. Allegheny reported 293, but will continue work until 350 are obtained. Hilltop will have its final report meeting Monday. Center Avenue ended its drive last Monday, reporting 775 members against a quota of 500.

South Hills High Student Missing

Master Toth

Julius Toth, 18, South Hills High School student, who disappeared October 14, is still missing, according to his mother, Mrs. Irma T. Toth, 255 Southern avenue, Mt. Washington. He was last seen just before the start of a football game at Langley field.

His mother believes that worry over his school work is responsible for his disappearance.

THREE WOMEN

A Story of the Conflicting Natures Of Different Generations

By FAITH BALDWIN

Louisa Does Not Approve of Plans Made for Son By His Father

CHAPTER III.

Lennox liked Sally Morgan. She had a way of tossing her small head, of flirting back her long, golden curls, a way of looking at you from under drooped lashes. She shared apples and cookies with him at recess. His first fight—he was terribly beaten but persisted—was because of Sally. Someone called her "Len's girl." He hadn't minded the insinuation, he'd liked it, but the code was to fight. The genteel ladies had been filled with horror. Mrs. Sheldon was informed. Lennox had been done up in witchhazel after reaching home and had submitted to a lecture, lasting for over an hour. Gentlemen didn't brawl. He was battered and bruised and quietly triumphant that his mother was unable to learn the cause of the battle. The other boy hadn't told, either; that was part of the code, too. But the other boy was never asked to Lennox's parties again. Mrs. Sheldon saw to that.

He had a party every year, on his birthday. Sally came, of course. On his eleventh birthday a tremendously thrilling thing happened—it might mean that he'd have to fight again. They played that game where you bow to the wittiest, kneel to the prettiest and kiss the one you love best. Lennox, red flags flying in his cheeks, his slim body tricked out in the black velvet, the wide sash and lace collar of Mrs. Burnett's ubiquitous hero, bent his dark head and his knee to Sally Morgan and, advancing timidly, kissed her dryly, briefly, a little smackingly, upon her smooth, unblushing cheek. Louisa Sheldon, who had been hovering just beyond the circle of children with a look of waiting in her eyes, dropped her arms to her sides and turned away. That was the last time that they played at kissing games at Lennox's parties.

CONFLICTING PLANS

When Lennox had outgrown the small private school, he entered a larger one. Mrs. Sheldon did not send him away to boarding school, as Fred Van Alstyne and the Lambert twins were sent. She said that she preferred to have him with her, at the age in which a growing boy most needs the home influence. Of course, people said wisely, it was not to be expected that she would part from the boy so soon after his father's death.

Sheldon had settled that Lennox was to go through Harvard. Louisa had said nothing at the time—it was shortly after the child's birth—but she had always had other plans. She would have carried them out in any case, but George might have proven difficult. George's death was untimely, of course, but certainly, as regarded the upbringing of the boy, clearly providential. Being a good woman, she never admitted this, even to herself.

College! Four years away from her? And not alone the physical absence, but the loosening of the spiritual ties, the fraying of the threads, to wound her . . . the mental paths he would travel, upon which her love's feet might not tread.

TRAVELS EXTENSIVELY

To Henrietta Van Dusen, Louisa spoke casually, when the subject arose between them.

"There is no occasion for it. It is not as if Lennox wished to follow a profession. He will conduct his father's business. When he is of age he will enter the office and train under Mr. Simmons. In the import business no college education is necessary. He will have proper schooling and travel. Especially travel."

After Sheldon's death his widow spent her summers in Europe with the boy. Lennox grew to know London and Paris, the Italian cities, the French coast, as well as he knew Washington Square and Central Park. People remarked them often, on the steamers, in the foreign towns, the tall, straight-backed woman, the small, immaculately dressed boy trotting along beside her, listening quietly while she directed his attention to objects of beauty or history, or read him paragraphs from a guidebook.

Those growing years of Lennox Sheldon's. How full of little memorable pictures—travel pictures as clean cut and conventional as stereopticon views, as colored postcards—moonlight on the Bay of Naples, starlight on the Parthenon, London Tower and Windsor Castle, a church in Florence, St. Peter's and the pigeons, sunshine in the gardens at Versailles.

And always his mother, close beside him, casting her definite shadow; always the remembered sound of her voice, reading from the guidebook, from some selected novel; always the sense of dark, brooding wings folded about him.

As Lennox grew older his mother rarely touched him, with her hands. Only morning and night. Then, always the same. Her hand on his arm, drawing him nearer; her searching look into his eyes, her other hand passed swiftly over his head from brow to crown, the firm, quick pressure of her thin lips on his cheek. "Good morning, Lennox." "Good night, my boy."

Yet sometimes he would wake and know that she was in his room. If he spoke to her, sleepily, out of his dreamless unconsciousness, the answer was always the same. "Hush, go to sleep. Good night."

Then he would see her move to the door. Sometimes she carried a flickering candle. Sometimes the little flame of the night light would dimly search her out. Then the door would close, softly.

But he knew other nights when sleep held him so closely that he could not lift his heavy lids nor frame his tongue to a question. Yet he knew that she was there. She bent over him, moveless, her eyes hungry on his face. Or perhaps she would sit on the low slipper-chair beside the bed, her hands in her lap—a long time, a long time. He knew it. Yet he could not awake. Through the empty caverns of his sleep, the dusky caverns, she moved, quietly, without haste, she moved surely, looking for him.

Upon such nights, his sleep was troubled; dreams came, dreams of great birds, their wings silent and smothering.

In the morning he thought he had dreamed her, too. Sunlight came; there would be honey for breakfast; he would meet his mother's cool eyes, feel her hand touch him lightly, hear her voice pronounce the quiet greeting, watch her bend her head, saying grace. Then, after prayers, came school, the beat of the wind down the city streets, the fear lest he be late.

His life seemed so without startling events that trivialities took on amazing importance. There was the day he flew his new kite, the one shaped to a crimson dragon—the day he was struck with a baseball by boys playing in the streets and came home bleeding terribly, yet so proud that he had not cried. He was 12 then, too old for tears. And there were the many winter days when he skated in Central Park.

He loved skating; he had silver wings upon his heels, wings like those of the marble Mercury on the first stair-landing at home. He flew with a delicious sense of peril, of escape, the ice rang sweetly under his feet. There was danger, there was delight. And he was himself, every muscle obeyed him—he had, momentarily, an imperious will. The air was crystal to breathe, the sky a sheet of attainable blue, the stark trees postured against it, stiffly black as forgetfulness.

He liked watching the other people. The bearded, muffled men who pushed the chairs in which pretty women sat, furred and bonneted, their cheeks pink, their eyes laughing. And there were little boys and girls to hail him admiringly. He skated better than any of them. He taught Sally, he put her skates on for her, he guided her first frightened steps, he put his arm about her and held her safe above the ignominy of a fall.

Synopsis

New York in the middle 80's, a sumptuously furnished home on Washington square, and Mrs. Louisa Lennox Sheldon, the first of "Three Women." She is aristocratic, aloof, even cool towards her husband, George, and almost jealous of him over their infant son, Lennox, her "god." She realizes that George's first choice was her sister; the latter had led him on coquetishly and then—married the other man. Louisa accepted George as a husband, ignoring his flirtatious ways with frigid disdain for 10 years, when he died, leaving her a sorrowing widow but inwardly happy that she alone could now mold her 9-year-old "god."

Now Go On

She sat movelessly, her hands in her lap.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

If the eye specialist says "glasses all the time," obey him. If you have a blistering hatred for specs, get rimless ones with corners trimmed away. Surprising how many interesting styles of glasses can be had now. No need to wear bone cases and look sternly academic.

Stretching exercises are helpful when there is too much fat under the arms and the waist line isn't what it should be. Stand facing the wall. Lift the hands, go up on tiptoe, stretch to the limit of toes and fingertips. Repeat 10 times. Rest, heels on the floor, hands on hips, breathe deeply five times. Go at the stretching again. Thirty stretches every day will drive fat cells away.

Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Marion Becomes Belle of the Ball

Marion had made good use of the 10 minutes I had given her for primping. I saw that clearly when at the end of that time she came quietly back to her table and sat down next to Mr. Owen. She had experimented delicately with rouge and lip stick, and I marveled at the skill with which she had applied them. Instead of looking made-up, almost vulgar, as did Avis Arlen, she had only enhanced her own charming tints so skilfully that her face was like an exquisite frame for her big brown eyes, brilliant with her excited uncertainty as to what had been planned for her.

The strains of a dance was just beginning as Marion took her seat. Mr. Owen leaned toward her, but before he could speak Noel, from one side of her table and Ronald from another, stopped precipitately before her and asked her to dance.

From the next table Avis Arlen betrayed her surprise with involuntarily lifted eyebrows, for Ronald, to all appearances, had been her property all the evening, and she had purposely parried Hank's invitation to dance, in the expectation of Ronald's coming to her table.

There was no element of kindliness or consideration in Avis. Her manner made it cruelly patent to Hank that she considered him just a preparatory school boy, not to be considered when older college men were asking her to dance.

MARION BESIEGED

Hank turned away, striving valiantly to hide his chagrin, but when Avis saw both Ronald and Noel besieging Marion, and, casting a quick look around, discovered that the rest of the young men were already on the floor, she called softly to Hank:

"Don't be so quick! I was only fooling."

But I had no time to waste upon Avis' behavior. All my faculties were focused on Marion. She was looking from Ronald to Noel in a feigned bewilderment that was as pretty as it was clever, and I guessed that she was prolonging the suspense for the benefit of Avis.

"But what am I going to do?" Marion queried.

"That's easy," Ronald said, masterfully, smiling down at her. "You'll dance this one with me, and give Noel the next one. I got here two steps ahead of him."

"But I wasn't two words behind you," Noel said, keeping up the byplay. "If you carry her off now, I warn you I shall cut-in on you."

"Try it," Ronald said, guiding Marion out to the dancing floor.

Noel did try it when the dance was about a quarter through.

I saw Avis look up hopefully at this inauguration of the "cutting-in" system, which I had known must come after the revue, but it was several minutes before any one cut in on her. In the meantime Marion was the center of a swiftly changing group consisting of Ronald, Noel, Bob Trevellan, his chum, and Bill.

AVIS LOSES POPULARITY

What Charles Owen thought, I did not know. He had nodded indulgently to Ronald as the boy who for years had called him "uncle" whisked Marion away. For several minutes he watched the "cutting in" and then, rising, he went out upon the dancing floor and, tapping Hank upon the shoulder, took Avis away from him.

His vanity, I was sure, made him unconscious of the fact that he had done the worst thing possible for the girl's social success. Young men are like sheep, most of them. They had seen Ronald and Noel, the two most personable men in the room, apparently "rushing" Avis, while Marion's cavaliers were confined to a boy and a man past middle age. They had taken their cues accordingly. They were all well-bred lads, and had not permitted any girl to remain without a partner, but everyone had seen that Avis Arlen had been first choice in the dancing with almost every young man in the room.

But no longer.

It was not her reaction, however, that was troubling me. I watched Philip Veritzen furtively and found that he in his turn was scrutinizing Avis. And when he tapped Harry Underwood on the shoulder as I was dancing with him and said, "I think I'll try this cut-in system," I felt instinctively that it was not the dance he wished of me, but an opportunity to speak of Avis Arlen.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Tomorrow marks the first anniversary of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club and at all the meetings today a birthday party was held in honor of this event. Take it all in all, it has been a successful year from many standpoints. The membership has shown a steady gain and the parents of the club members have come to learn that their children are in a healthy, wholesome environment every Saturday morning. And now comes the second year. Let's step into it with the real juvenile club spirit—let's grow, grow, grow!

If you are not a member of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, send your name and address, name of your parents, date and year of your birth, school you attend, to the secretary, Junior Komic Club, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., and a membership card and button will be mailed to you.

Today more than 900 boys and girls, members of the Manor Chapter, attended the regular Saturday meeting, where Manager Joe Blowitz had arranged an attractive show for their entertainment in addition to the many games and contests in which the members participated for valuable prizes.

STAGE SHOW

The stage show opened with six cute little girls dressed in black and gold costumes and known as the Black and Gold Sextet. They sang "Put That Sun Back in the Sky," and sang it very well.

Next the Ingersoll Midgets, five clever youngsters dressed in evening clothes, sang "Say It Isn't So," and danced their way right into the hearts of the members.

Ruth Barclay, a cute little dark-haired miss of 14, sang "A Shanty in Old Shanty Town" and finished with a difficult tap dance. The Johnson Sunshine Triplets followed with a novelty song and dance number that brought rounds of applause from all present.

AMAZES AUDIENCE

Louise Foley, a cute little miss who seems to be able to tie herself in many different kinds of knots, had the youngsters wondering just haw she did it without breaking her back. But little Louise, with the grace and rhythm of a seasoned performer, continued to amaze the youngsters.

The stage show closed with the Johnson Sunshine Triplets and the entire cast in one great big song and dance finale, and the yougsters were sorry when the stage show was over.

At the Schenley the members were mystified by that foremost American psychic, "Mystic" Clarke, who answered all their questions about school, their football teams, and the business that they would follow when finished with school and college. He also told many of them where they might find lost articles which had become misplaced and which the youngsters had thought lost forever.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS

Congratulations to the following boys and girls, all members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, who are celebrating their birthdays today:

Question of Home Rule

The People Should Be Allowed to Vote on the City Manager Proposal—Comment on Local News.

The Municipal Charter Committee of Pennsylvania is quietly sounding out candidates for the Legislature on their attitude towards legislation to make optional for Pennsylvania municipalities the proportional representation and city manager plan of government. The candidates' views on the question should be made public, so that the voters may be guided in choosing from among the rival aspirants.

Among the Pittsburgh members of the committee are Attorney M. W. Acheson, Jr., Grant Curry, Father James R. Cox, Patrick T. Fagan, president of District No. 5 of the United Mine Workers; Judge James H. Gray, Edgar J. Kaufmann, Mrs. John O. Miller and others equally well known. A movement sponsored by citizens of their caliber commands respect.

The city manager plan may or may not be a good plan for Pittsburgh. But that is not the question that the candidates for the Legislature must decide now, and is not the question the voters must decide in voting for candidates for the Legislature. The question is if Pittsburghers are to be allowed to decide for themselves whether or not they desire the city manager plan.

A proposal supported by as many local civic leaders as are supporting the city manager proposal deserves to be taken seriously. The people should be given the right to pass upon it. It is a simple question of home rule. Some of our legislators refused to grant Pittsburghers the right of "self-determination" in this matter when the question was up at the last regular session. Unless they have changed their attitude they should not be returned to Harrisburg.

The Chamber of Commerce, the Allied Boards of Trade, the League of Women Voters, the Civic Club and a dozen other local organizations have indorsed the proposed legislation to allow Pennsylvania municipalities to adopt the city manager plan if they desire it. The indorsing organizations should help make candidates for the Legislature come out in the open and tell what their attitude will be, if elected.

Other matters affecting the municipal government of Pittsburgh on which the Legislature will be asked to act are the proposals that the office of County Delinquent Tax Collector be abolished and the city and county offices for the assessment and collection of taxes consolidated. The people have a right to know how the candidates stand on these matters, too.

The Pittsburgh Real Estate Board recommends a cut of 10 per cent in the salaries of public school employes, in addition to the 10 per cent refund to which the teachers have voluntarily agreed. To cut the teachers' salaries it will be necessary to amend or repeal the Edmonds act, which fixes their salaries. The teachers and many other citizens would like to know what the legislative candidates think of this proposal.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot is doing the citizens a service by undertaking to find out what the attitude of the candidates for the General Assembly will be towards proposed public utility bills to give the people fair rates and adequate service. The Governor has addressed seven questions to each candidate and announces he will report their answers to the people through the newspapers.

Pennsylvania Baptists in convention at Reading this week called attention to two other matters on which the Legislature is going to have to reach a decision at the forthcoming session. The Baptists demanded strict enforcement of the Blue Law and of prohibition. The members of the Legislature from Allegheny County at least will misrepresent their constituents if they do not vote to repeal these laws.

Six hundred and thirty thousand, two hundred and twenty-three meals were served to destitute men and women in the restaurants of the Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor during the past 12 months and 243,409 homeless men were given lodging. The demand for relief is not abating. The association should meet with a generous response to its appeal for help in shouldering this burden.

Crusades against vice generally are mere flashes in the pan. There is a flare-up of activity, then the authorities lapse into somnolence and the gamblers, speakeasy proprietors and keepers of disorderly houses emerge from retirement and reopen their places. But Judge Frank P. Patterson's warfare against racketeering is not like that.

Not content with having shaken the constables out of their lethargy during the September term of court, Judge Patterson states they again will be confronted, the first Monday in December, with evidence of lawlessness in their bailiwicks and held to account. The campaign is bringing good results. It demonstrates that vice cannot flourish unless the governmental authorities wish it to flourish.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has just told L. F. Loree, veteran railroad president and representative of the Harriman interests, that they will not let him spend $178,000,000 in Pennsylvania. Loree wanted to build a new railroad from Pittsburgh to Easton, Pa., but the commission is afraid the line would hurt the existing systems.

It is doubtful if such a vast project could be started at present even if permission had been granted. But favorable action at least would have left the way open for the work upon improvement of business and financial conditions. The proposed railroad would be shorter and would have lighter grades than any competing trunk line.

In connection with the observance of the 250th anniversary of the arrival of William Penn in America the Sunday Sun-Telegraph will publish tomorrow in the Gravure Section a reproduction of a famous old picture of the scene at Shakumaxon as the great Quaker leader negotiated his treaty of friendship with the Indians. There will be many other interesting pictures in the section, too.

The American Weekly, distributed as a supplement with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, will have an entertaining article in tomorrow's issue about the exploits and experiences of a 12-year-old small-town girl who "drew" $1,000 from the bank and spent all of it but $141 in two wild weeks in St. Louis. Noteworthy, also, will be found the article on "Why We Are So 'Dumb,'" by Dr. Donald A. Laird, of Colgate University.

Making It Up

(Copyright, 1932.)

Now come the ancient bugaboos
That trembling politicians use,
They chant the old Election Blues
In fevered desperation.
They brew concoctions dark and queer,
A broth of panic, doubt and fear,
Of dismal threats and omens drear,
Of dread and consternation.

With all the bunk at his command,
Old G. O. P. with cunning hand
Is splashing gloom about the land
To make a reign of terror.
Although it worked in days of yore
It doesn't fool 'em any more,
And this will be the final score:
No runs, No hits, ONE ERROR.

—George E. Phair.

To Liberals Again: 'Put Up or Shut Up'

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

We have frequently made the point that no sincere opponent of national prohibition, no matter what his party affiliations, can possibly justify himself to his conscience in voting for Mr. Hoover.

We have pointed out the fact, which looms like a mountain, that the issue on prohibition has been made clear as crystal and have called upon all who clamor for the ending of the "noble experiment" now to "put up or shut up."

Four years ago the issue, while clear, was not half so clear as it is today; but distinct as it was then vast numbers of anti-prohibitionists went to the polls and voted with the Anti-Saloon League. These justified themselves with self-sophistication. They had been told, in whispers, with winks, to "leave it to Hoover." They left it there and it is there yet.

The issue was thoroughly threshed out in the two conventions this year. I was at both and witnessed the fights. It was the outstanding fight in the Hoover convention and the Hoover administration group in the convention defeated the plan of honest foes of the Eighteenth Amendment for a straight declaration for repeal.

In the Democratic convention a straight, honest declaration for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, together with a pledge for the immediate repeal of the Volstead act after March 4, was adopted with a tremendous majority.

Thus the issue was made clear enough.

* * *

A Cowardly Subterfuge

The difference between the planks on the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment in the two platforms makes an issue. The Hoover plank did not put the party behind a repeal pledge; it merely submitted repeal without recommendation to the people. That was a cowardly subterfuge. The Roosevelt plank puts the party behind repeal.

It is the difference between courageous leadership and the utter lack of leadership.

The Hoover plank retains in the federal government the power which makes federal interference with state rights and home rule perpetual and will continue all the mockery of enforcement; the Roosevelt plank passes the power back to the states.

But there is another difference which is vital: The Roosevelt declaration is for the immediate repeal of the Volstead act without waiting four years on the gamble of a repeal of the amendment, and the Hoover position is to keep the Volstead act until there is a repeal of the amendment.

Under the Democratic plan the breweries will be opened, hundreds of thousands of men will be put to work, and hundreds of millions of revenue will be brought in.

* * *

The Courage of Her Convictions

That is the reason Republican opponents of national prohibition, who are honest with themselves, are leaving Mr. Hoover for Mr. Roosevelt; and that is the reason no Republican opponent of prohibition who dares be honest with himself can do anything less.

Within the last two days we have had evidence of this drift. The other night in Bergen County, New Jersey, Mrs. Mary Sayles Moore, long a member of the Republican County Committee, resigned her membership as a protest against the hypocrisy of the Hoover position. She is a brilliant, popular woman who has been identified with public affairs—a friend of the late Dwight Morrow. She has been a staunch Republican worker, with a background of Republicanism going back into the generations. She has been active in Mrs. Sabin's organization for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment—and she has the courage of her convictions—the honesty of them.

* * *

Mrs. Moore Gives Her Reasons

Thus she appeared before the startled committee to read her resignation. Her reasons are the reasons of an honest and courageous woman. We commend her reasons to men in Jersey who are still playing hide and seek with their conscience:

"I am becoming more convinced every day that Mr. Hoover is not enthusiastic for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, as I was led to believe by his acceptance speech. The Republican party has sidestepped the issue for so long that I was inclined to believe that he had seen the light. But as the campaign progresses, and I witness the enthusiastic support which he receives from the dry element, I find I am up in the air."

She finds that Mr. Curtis, playing the dry game in dry territory, "has made the challenge of our party's insincerity deserved," and she observed that Coolidge utterly ignored the subject in his speech. She continues:

"I am heartily out of sympathy with the plank in the Republican platform, which I consider was framed with the sole idea of holding the wet and dry elements both within the party. It is hypocritical, and if put into legislation will continue most of the evils of the present regime, and will fail to raise the revenues so badly needed at this time."

There can be no honest mind among the enemies of prohibition who must not agree. But Mrs. Moore has the courage to follow her logic.

* * *

Squarely Up to Every Republican

And so she resigns from the Republican Committee and takes her stand "with the few or many on the side of the Democratic policy because of the one vital point involved, the needed repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment" and because she believes "that the repeal will be expedited by that party in office."

That puts it squarely up to every Republican anti-prohibitionist in Jersey who plans to vote against his convictions, to justify his conduct to his conscience—and to common sense.

Samuel Harden Church Explains

About the same time Samuel Harden Church, president of the Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh and a Republican, announces his determination to vote his convictions, and not merely to mumble about them between elections. Thus he explains:

"The Republicans adopted a platform which aims to retain in the Constitution a very dangerous remnant of the prohibition amendment which will prolong interminably all the ills from which our people now suffer—corruption, drunkenness, graft and public shame.

"That this will be the result of Republican success is indicated by the fact that the Anti-Saloon League and all political preachers are campaigning for Mr. Hoover."

And so, refusing to play hide and seek with his conscience, Mr. Church announces his intention to vote for Roosevelt.

In the midst of the hypocrisy and cowardice of a campaign, it is refreshing to find in these announcements of Mrs. Moore and Mr. Church that there are people with enough intelligence to know that an election is a referendum on policies, and courageous enough to follow their convictions out of their party and into the party that stands four-square against national prohibition.

Trumps—In the Love-Game

When it comes to marriage, most men are a sad lot—and most women, a sad lottery.

* * *

"The Melancholy Days!" In spring, you buy a gay new hat and plant a bright new garden; in summer you buy a bright new bathing-suit and start a gay new love-affair. And LOOK at the darned things, now!

* * *

Getting your first husband, like getting your first job, is a feat. But, judging from the ease with which a divorcee can re-marry, most men seem to require "previous experience" in everything, these days, from business to matrimony.

These modern men are so fickle, that it makes you dizzy. But, what can you expect of them, when a wise old man like King Solomon had 999 changes of heart, before he found out what kind of girl really appealed to him

* * *

Many a man goes to his grave wondering whether he captured the woman he married—or merely capitulated to her.

* * *

Vanity is God's gift. No doubt, even a lady hippopotamus secretly fancies that she has "feminine charm"—and a gentleman hippopotamus has a secret conviction that no girl could resist him.

Marriage may be far from perfect. But it IS sort of comforting to see a man's hat hanging on the rack, even though his mind or his feet may be miles away, pursuing a golf ball—or another woman.

* * *

Nowadays men don't wait for love to fly out of the window. They treat it so carelessly or so roughly that it has to be carried out on a stretcher.

* * *

As the love game goes today, the last card which a woman should play is her heart.

The Rhyming Optimist

What Women Love

Women love such trivial things;
Sheen of silk, glint of rings,
Dainty china on a tray,
Roses budding day by day;
Through such little things they gain
Rest from care and ease from pain.

Yet, so strangely are they made,
Women never are afraid
To relinquish luxuries,
All things made to soothe and please,
Shining silks and jewels bright,
All things fashioned for delight.

For they love such mighty things!
Through their souls such courage rings!
Fearless, they of want or cold,
Heedless they of gems or gold,
In their love for truth and trust,
All things holy all things just!

ENGLAND DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

LONDON, Oct. 22.—Most London's parks could be lost in the Bois. Nor have they the camaraderie to be found in Paris or in the Tiergarten in Berlin. Instead they suggest a bristle of split pleasantries, like roadmen hitting spikes. I found myself adjusting my tie and flipping back my hair.

The best-known park is Hyde, offering its fashionable caracole of riders along Rotton Row and Marble Arch, the battle ground of the creeds. At the Arch, discontents may hire portable platforms to "blow off steam." Atheist tackles Christian while an audience flings bus-driver retorts.

The only requirement of speakers is to be articulate. They can trim civilization, the Crown or even God to their own dimensions. This morning there was but a single knot of listless idlers. A wiry Cockney, after stalking local Tonis and Jerries in sundry pubs, hiccupped enthusiasm for increased dole.

One of the memorable stretches is by the bridge leading into Kensington Gardens. Here a flock of peacocks strut. One in snow white today was in full preen. I thought of Dolores in the old Midnight Frolic. Hard by is a pond where old men—and why not?—sail toy boats.

On Broad Walk are acres of perambulators where unopened rosebuds, responding to a riant sun, furl and unfurl tiny pink toes. On the grass older and more acquisitive tots shine with adventure. One toddled toward me. I smiled. She smiled. Then, archly, she turned and scampered away—the little flirt!

We went to government kennels today for Billy. He had not been visited since lodging there because of the disappointment he would feel when we went away without him. Anyway, telephone inquiries announced him aces up. But when we arrived, he was sitting aloofly alone, sad-eyed and slightly atremble at the side of a clean runway. Deaf, he could not hear joyous yips all about. He only knew he had suddenly been deserted. Finally sensing us, he raced down the netted enclosure with human-like yowls of hysteria. His frenzy finally toppled him into a sort of half swoon. He will never be left that way again—not for all England.

Invariably, I have a sentimental urge for a last look at the curiously old Victorian Strand before quitting London. Piccadilly, Pall Mall, Mayfair and Regent street belong to London, but the Strand to the Empire. Shop windows mirror the broader scope, filled as they are with pith helmets, spine pads and puttees to outfit men who peg the flag in all corners of the world. It is proverbial every weary exile returning from some far flung frontier steps from his train and makes a beeline for the Strand.

* * *

For a half hour I watched the parade of prisoners before a white wigged justice in Bow Street Police Court. Mostly a collection of drunks facing five-shilling fines, but one mild-mannered man, the type you imagined might keep rabbits in a back yard, was caught up oddly. For no reason he walked up to a well-dressed lady looking in a window and slapped her face. His explanation was even more curious. His wife had been ragging him for a new dress and the lady's fine frock incited unreasonable anger.

* * *

From Bow street I went over for a closeup of Scotland Yard—that oddly named central police station once "The Yard," but because it was moved onto a Scottish land grant was rechristened Scotland Yard. It is an enormous red building planned for an opera house but abandoned after the foundations were built. Like all police stations, it was forbidding and offering the sad dry smell of lye.

The London bobby is a remarkable example of the triumph of clothes. Most are country gawks of large stature, but immediately they don uniforms, helmets and boots, assume unusual dignity and importance. No Londoner thinks of poking fun at a policeman. Even on the stage, travesty is limited. Incidentally, I found it not amiss to address them as "Inspector."

* * *

London is highly publicized as a man's town, deservedly. But my only purchase was in Burlington Arcade, where, after fooling so long, I nearly got locked in—hey, Jack, gotta match—for the night, I took on a pair of pajamas with white jacket and black pantaloons, patch-pocketed in fiery red. They will be something to hang out on the Monday line when I get back to Park avenue!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

It was a great relief to me when I found that everybody's muddled.

Of course it was a great surprise at first and, considerable of a shock; for my elders have given me such a different idea when I was a child!

According to them, grown-ups knew everything. Grown-ups were never cry babies. Grown-ups never made silly mistakes. Never dropped and forgot things. Never left things all higgeldy-piggeldy. Always knew exactly what they wanted to do. Always wanted to do the right thing—and did it.

And if I was a good girl, and studied hard, and did what I was told, that's the way I'd be some day. I, too, would be wise, and strong, and sure, and never make mistakes.

Would I be sure, then, whether I wanted a pink ribbon or a blue one, without changing my mind dozens and dozens of times, and then wishing I'd gotten the other one instead?

Yes, they assured me, I'd be perfectly sure just what I wanted all the time. And I'd never want silly things, either, or get mad if I couldn't have them. Grown-ups never wanted silly things. Grown-ups never got mad.

Naturally, with a sales talk like that, I grew up with some mighty glowing ideas about adults. To be sure, they did seem a little stuffy and stodgy at times; and I frequently wondered why if they were so smart, they didn't have more fun. Yet, on the whole, I had perfect faith that they were superior beings, forever removed from the frets and furies of childhood.

As I advanced in years, came to be the enormous age of 17, this faith persisted. And I began to look forward eagerly to the solid years of maturity; for 17 is certainly a pesty age. Page that liar who first said that youth is the happiest time of life. I wasn't having a happiest time. I was, generally speaking, having the heckuva time.

Nobody understood me. Worse yet, I didn't understand myself. I never knew what I wanted to do, and, when I did, I didn't want to do it. Make up my mind? How could I, when I seemed to have a new mind every minute?

But some day, thank goodness, I'll emerge from all this muddle. Some day these messy days would be over and I, too, would be sure and serene.

And so I went on, living and hoping.

And presently I was 27, instead of 17, and should have become a grown-up, too, with the Guaranteed Grown-up Poise and Power. But, to my secret shame and consternation, I was nothing of the sort. Outwardly I put up a pretty good bluff, but inwardly I was still 17! Inwardly I was as far from knowing what I wanted, or liking it when I got it, as I had been at 7!

So the years went on, with the accumulating conviction that I was the world's worst sap. Oh, how I admired and envied poised people! How I wished that I, too, were "master of my fate and captain of my soul," instead of the weak worm which I secretly knew myself to be!

A miserable state of mind. Doubtless you have shared it. Yet at least 10 more years had to pass before it began to dawn on me that EVERY OTHER HUMAN BEING ON EARTH FELT THE SAME WAY! But when it did dawn, I went almost ga-ga from relief.

"Sure and serene maturity?" People who knew their own minds? My eye! There was no such animal! In amongst the rich and the great led the trail, but never a thoroughly cool or competent human did I find. I interviewed famous philosophers, and they whined to me about their corn plasters. I visited our financial wizards, and found them fretting over cross-word puzzles. I sat in the Senate gallery of our national capital and watched cry-baby exhibitions that would have been promptly adjourned to the woodshed when I was seven.

And they tell me that even Einstein can't remember to put on a necktie! And has been known to pout over his oatmeal!

So there are, after all, no grown-ups! We'll all muddled. We're all still trying to make up our minds over hairpins and mumblety-peg. And these guys with their hardboiled eyes and haughty jowls are probably just wondering if they look best in brown.

Whoops! It's a great discovery! It has taken me nearly 50 years to find out. BUT WATCH ME LIVE NOW!

Isn't It So?

A close-mouthed man never is forced to eat his words.

The only time a rich man concerns his relatives is when he is ailing.

The man who can work three days a week thinks a half loaf is better than none.

The automobile driver who uses more horse sense than horse power keeps out of the hospital.

Text For Today I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service.—Romans, xii:1.

(Today's text is suggested by the Rev. Herbert M. Carnahan, pastor, North End Methodist Episcopal Church.)

Wise Words

Too low they build who build beneath the stars.—Young.

All that glitters is not gold;
Often have you heard that told;
Many a man his life hath sold
But my outside to behold.
—Merchant of Venice.

When wealth is lost, nothing is lost;
When health is lost, something is lost;
When character is lost, all is lost!
—German Proverb.

Now nature is not at variance with art, nor art with nature; they being both the servants of his providence. Art is the perfection of nature. Were the world now as it was the sixth day, there were yet a chaos. Nature hath made one world, and art another. In brief, all things are artificial; for nature is the art of God.—Sir Thomas Browne.
